CITY MAY SEND ITS PRISONERS TO DELAWARE

Sheriff There Says He Will Recommend Marion's Terms to Commissioners

AMPLE ROOM PROVIDED

Federal Prisoners Boarded Occasionally at Rate of 60 Cents Daily

Possibility of the Delaware County jail being the future boarding house for prisoners from the city of Marion was indicated today by City Solicitor George T. Geran following a conference held with Conner Lambert, sheriff of Delaware County.

Geran and Chief of Police Thompson, acting under authority from City Council, visited Delaware yesterday to open negotiations for a jail board contract. Rates fixed by the Marion County commissioners are too high and unfair, city officials declare, and they have decided to seek accommodations elsewhere.

Should negotiations in Delaware fail to work out successfully, an effort will be made to arrange for sending the local prisoners to some other neighboring county, Geran states.

Prospects Promising

He says, however, that prospects for coming to terms with Delaware County officials appear to be promising. Sheriff Lambert said that the plan meets with his approval and that he will urge the Delaware County Commissioners to accept a contract satisfactory to local city officials.

He expects to submit the proposal to the commissioners Saturday.

The Marion County board asks 75 cents a day for each city prisoner taken to the jail, regardless of the number of meals served. The city insists that this is an unfair and unreasonable proposal, maintaining that the charge should be at the rate of 25 cents a meal.

Approves Terms

The Delaware County sheriff indicated that he will recommend taking Marion County prisoners under the terms proposed by local city officials. Whether the board of county commissioners will agree will probably be known after Saturday's meeting.

There is ample room in the Delaware jail to house the prisoners from here, Sheriff Lambert states. Federal prisoners are boarded there occasionally, on a 60-cent a day rate paid by the government. This is the contract price paid for federal prisoners in all jails not owned and controlled by the government, Lambert says. Federal prisoners are overcrowded and it has become necessary for the government to enter into contracts on the outside to take care of the overflow.

10-CENT TAXI FARE SEEN IN COLUMBUS

Rate-Cutting Practices Slash Prices in Capital; Women Drive Cabs

Columbus, March 16—Taxicab rates in Columbus will soon be almost as low as street car fares, it was indicated today, following new developments in the city's "taxi war."

Rate-cutting began several months ago when one company introduced a price of 50 cents to any point within the city limits. Several others followed, abandoning the meter system for the flat rate.

Girl cab drivers, installed by the company which made the cut, furnished the next innovation. The legality of permitting women to operate taxis was questioned by competing companies, but the courts held that a woman has as much right at the steering wheel as a man.

Then, several days ago, a new 25-cent company entered the fight. Now, the company which started it all, has countered with another announcement. Within two weeks, the company says, a new fleet of light, inexpensive taxis will be cruising the streets of Columbus.

The rate, according to the announcement, will be 10 cents.

PROBE FATAL CRASH

Four Fliers Killed When Planes Meet in Air and Fall

San Diego, Cal., March 16—Official inquiry into the air tragedy which cost the lives of four marine fliers yesterday was launched here today. The four aviators—Lieut. Laurence R. Dewine and Jay D. Swartwout, Corp. H. C. Chappell and Private H. C. Bailey—were hurled to their death when their two airplanes collided in midair and plunged 300 feet to earth.

The accident occurred at Dutch Flat, a mile from the local marine base. The plane occupied by Swartwout and Chappell, according to Capt. H. D. Campbell, flight leader, locked wings with the ship in which Dewine and Bailey were flying, and the two craft fell to the ground.

SHERIFF FAILS TO LINK NEGRO WITH SHOOTING

Clyde Jones, colored, arrested at police headquarters Wednesday night as a suspect in the shooting of a negro at Mansfield Tuesday night, is still being held here although the sheriff of Richland County, who questioned the man yesterday, was unable to connect him up with the shooting. Jones was arrested when he applied at police headquarters for a place to stay all night.

MILITARY RITES

Services Will Be Held for "Mother" Crowley Saturday

CLEVELAND, March 16—For the first time in Cleveland's history, a military funeral will be given a woman. Mrs. John Crowley, affectionately called "Mother" by hundreds of soldiers, whom she has befriended, died here yesterday and plans were being made today to award her full military honors Saturday.

Mrs. Crowley served as a nurse in the Spanish-American War.

Beer Baron's Aide Would Be Solon

John "Dingbat" Oberta Has Boom Launched in True Style at Banquet

CHICAGO, March 16—Running on his record—which is remarkably well known—to police John "Dingbat" Oberto, lieutenant of "Big Joe" Saltis, South Side beer baron and racketeer, today was an avowed candidate for the Republican nomination as state senator.

Mr. Oberta's campaign was launched in style last night at a testimonial banquet in his honor tendered by the William J. Nellis Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Of the 500 banqueteers 200 occupied seats purchased at $3 by Mr. Oberta and his well known confidante, Mr. Saltis.

Prominent among the guests and principal speaker was "Big Tim" Murphy, late of Leavenworth, Kan. Mr. Murphy attended as the special guest of Mr. Saltis.

As Mr. Oberta entered the hall, followed by attendants, the band blared forth with "On Wisconsin." When the cheering subsided, Mr. Oberta was presented with honorary membership in the veterans' post, an honor which has been bestowed on few, including Vice President Dawes and President Coolidge.

Mr. Murphy, in a sort of "keynote" speech, delivered the oratorical hit of the evening:

"I ain't an educated cookoo," Murphy said in part. "I got a diploma from a swimming school, and I learned enough there to get by on.

"All I got to say is that you have to live back of the yards a

CARMEN TO SUPPORT CITY CIVIC PROGRAM

Erie Lodge Indorses Marion Forward Move Launched at Luncheon Meeting

Support of the movement for the advancement of Marion launched at the noon luncheon of the Marion Rotary Club with civic leaders at Hotel Harding Monday was pledged by members of Erie Lodge, No. 1,008, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America at the regular meeting of the organization last night.

Suggestions contained in the address of Grove Patterson, Toledo Blade editor, delivered at the luncheon Monday, were indorsed by the lodge.

Following a discussion of the advantages to be gained by such a campaign seven candidates were given the obligation of the brotherhood. Two applications for membership were accepted.

Future activities of the organization were outlined in an address by Hayes Maynard. A smoker and luncheon marked the close of the meeting. The next regular session of the lodge will be held April 5.

$6,925,188.94 ON DEPOSIT IN MARION

Resources of Local Banks Total $9,402,428.89, Report Discloses

Deposits in Marion's six banks totaled $6,925,188.94 on Feb. 28, a summary of reports filed with the state banking department showed today. The reports were compiled in response to a call issued by the state department for statements showing the condition of all Ohio banks on that date.

Resources of the Marion banks totaled $9,402,428.89, one of the highest figures in local banking history.

The statements also show that practically all available funds are actively employed in loans. The demand for loans at this time is unusually large, most of the money being needed for business and industrial purposes, representatives of the banks state.

The banking situation as a whole, according to analysis of the statements, is regarded as exceptionally favorable and is taken as an indication of increased business activity during the coming year.

MILLARD SANDERS DIES

Cleveland, March 16—Millard Sanders, veteran race driver, is dead in Oakland, Calif., according to word received here by friends. Apoplexy caused death, messages stated. Sanders, driving "Lou Dillon" in 1903, covered the mile in 1:56⅕—the first time a trotter ever covered the distance in less than two minutes, it was said.

Mute Courtship of Ex-Maharajah and American Girl Revealed; To Wed Saturday

PARIS, March 16—Tukojirao Holkar, Indian prince and former maharajah of Indore, who is to marry Miss Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, Wash., in India tomorrow, won his American bride-to-be through a strange courtship of silence, it was revealed today by European friends of the ex-ruler of Indore.

The ex-maharajah's love song, his friends said, was one without words and with music that only he and his fiancee could hear and understand.

This strange romance, which began in the United States, shifted to Europe when both happened to be visiting here at the same time. To his intimates in a secret circle of Orientals and Europeans, the Indian prince was known as a very diffident man.

A woman member of this little group, whose role is scarcely known in America, but whose rank equals that of the former maharajah, gave interesting details of the courtship to International News Service today.

"They—the ex-maharajah and Miss Miller—sat for hours at a time facing each other without saying a word," said the informant. "I have seen them that way on terraces at Cannes, Geneva, Aulaik and other places. The Indian's gaze was intense, Miss Miller's was more casual. The manner of parting was extraordinary. The ex-maharajah, while keeping his eyes intently upon those of his fiancee, would bend forward slightly and let his fingers rest lightly upon Miss Miller's wrist. At the contact he would rise abruptly and stride away."

This informant gave a different version of the couple's first meeting from that which has been published in American newspapers. According to the American version the couple became acquainted while the one-time maharajah was traveling in the United States. The noblewoman said they met at

PROBE CHARGE DAM NOT WELL-ANCHORED

State of California Takes Firm Hand in Investigation of Flood Cause

Los Angeles, March 16—While the indomitable people of devastated Santa Clara River Valley stuck to their task of digging out from the debris and wreckage strewn in the wake of the St. Francis Dam flood today, the state of California took a firm hand in the investigation to fix the blame for the breaking of the huge dyke which took a toll of hundreds of lives and millions in property loss.

The state investigation was ordered by Gov. C. C. Young following charges that the St. Francis Dam, built at the cost of $1,500,000, had been insecurely anchored in soft, red agglomerate rock.

The sensational charges were made by State Engineer Edward Hyatt, Jr., who declared the responsibility rested with the Los Angeles engineers who built the 208-foot concrete arch across the precipitious San Francisquito Canyon.

Hyatt made his report to Governor Young after a personal inspection of the silt where the dam once stood. All that remains of the massive arch is a huge slab of concrete, left standing in the center of the defile like a mammoth tombstone for those who died in the disaster. Both abutments were carried away by the unleashed flood.

Five of the state's most competent engineers to investigate the cause of the collapse of the big dyke and fix the responsibility for the catastrophe were to be appointed by Governor Young today.

Escape with $15,000: Cashier of Bank Expected To Die of Wounds

Madison, Ill., March 16—Four bandits shot A. W. Baltz, cashier, and Frank Smith, watchman, of the First National Bank here today in a holdup in front of the bank and escaped with payroll money estimated to be from $12,000 to $15,000. The robbers escaped in an automobile.

Smith was only slightly wounded in the arm, but Baltz may die.

Three Mills of Powder Company Explode in Valley Hills, N. Y.

Valley Falls, N. Y., March 16—Four men were instantly killed, several were injured and homes in nearby towns were damaged when three mills of the Hercules Powder Co., located on the state highway between this village and Schagticoke, exploded shortly before 9 o'clock this morning.

March Lion To Roar Over Week-end, Forecast Says

MARCH'S fabled lion, which staged a meek entry into Ohio on the first of the month and then absented himself after the first few days, came roaring back into the state today bringing with him King Winter and a fancy assortment of snowflakes.

According to today's weather report the lion will continue his roar over the week-end. There will be little or no change in temperature, the report reads.

Today's snowstorm, starting shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, continued to increase in volume and wind velocity up until noon.

As a decided contrast to the weather during the last few days records of Dr. E. H. Ruffensperger, official weather observer here, show that yesterday's high mark was 46 degrees while the temperature a year ago was 72. During the night the temperature dropped to 30 degrees, two points below freezing. A year ago the lowest mark was 40 degrees.

Mail Pilot Escapes When Engine of Plane Stops

CINCINNATI, March 16—When the engine of his Waco airmail plane stopped as he was flying over this city, Okey Bevins, the pilot, was forced to land at the foot of Haymiller-st, on the banks of the Ohio river, shortly before noon today.

The plane came down with a crash after gliding low, near several buildings in the Haymiller-st business section. Much excitement resulted and the plane was wrecked. Bevins was uninjured, however, and his mail was not damaged. He was flying out of Chicago.

HAMILTON VICTOR IN FIRST CLASS A FRAY

New Concord and Kunkle Survive Opening State Tournament Games

Marysville, 25; Strasburg, 18.

Columbus, March 16—Hamilton, New Concord and Kunkle won the right to enter the second round of play in the Ohio High School basketball tournament at Columbus this morning by scoring victories over their opponents in the opening contests.

Hamilton, in the only game played in the Class A division, ran wild in toppling the "highly touted" Hillsboro aggregation by a score of 35-7.

In the tightest fray of the morning play, New Concord battled an uphill game to beat Oberlin, runners up of last year's tournament by a score of 13 to 12. Anderson, forward of the New Concord team scored eight of his team's points.

The brilliant work of Cox at center, gave Kunkle a well earned victory over Tippecanoe City in the second game of the Class B competition. Kunkle began scoring from all angles at the start of the second half after leading 11 to 10 at the end of the first half. The score was, Kunkle, 27; Tippecanoe City, 21.

Mrs. Minerva D. Campbell, 77, Dies of Pneumonia; Funeral Saturday

Mrs. Minerva D. Campbell, 77, life resident of Montgomery Township, this county, died at 4:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon at her home in LaRue, following a 10 days illness of pneumonia. Campbell, formerly a druggist of LaRue, took place Jan. 1, 1868. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. D. D. Clifton and a granddaughter, Mrs. D. E. English, both of LaRue; a sister, Mrs. J. H. Mrs. Campbell had been a resident of LaRue, since her marriage, 58 years ago. She had been affiliated with the Campbell National Bank for the last 24 years, and at the time of her death was a director in the institution.

CERTAIN COUPLE IS LOST IN ATLANTIC

Only Hope Is That Fliers Were Picked Up by Ship Without Wireless

New York, March 16—Fear that Capt. Walter H. Hinchcliffe and the Hon. Elsie Mackay are lost became certain today.

Three days have passed since the British "ace" and the daughter of Lord Inchape took off from Cranwell Airdome, England, in an attempt to be the first to cross the Atlantic by air from Europe.

There remains only the barest possibility that the golden-winged monoplane "Endeavor" was forced to make an ocean landing and that the fliers were picked up by a craft unequipped with wireless.

Had the fliers made a forced landing anywhere in America or if they had been picked up by a ship having radio apparatus, news of them would have been received by this time.

Although it was generally admitted yesterday that the fliers' 450-horsepower Detroiter monoplane did not carry sufficient gasoline to enable it to keep aloft longer than 15 hours at the most, waning hope persisted until rumors that the plane had been sighted in New Brunswick and Maine were found baseless.

Hope soared for an hour or so yesterday upon an erroneous report that Hinchcliffe and Miss Mackay were stranded on Stratton's Island, off the coast of Maine.

SNOWBOUND VILLAGE REACHED BY DOCTOR

Travels 60 Miles in Two Days with Dog Team To Reach Detour

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., March 16—The snowbound village of Detour was once more in touch with the outside world today after an isolation lasting more than two weeks.

Dr. John F. Deadman, driving a dog team to a sled laden with medicine and food mushed quietly into the village early this morning. The tired huskies barrowed deeply into the snow for their well earned rest. Dr. Deadman, weary with the strain of a 120-day journey of 60 miles, sought the first available shelter.

Dr. Deadman's achievement was all the more remarkable in view of the fact that he has only one leg.

A government transport plane was expected to hop off immediately from here with food stocks of mail and [illegible] of penicillin.

DRIVE TO ENFORCE LIMIT RULE STARTS

Deputy Sheriff Vane Ireland in Charge of Campaign on County Roads

With the season of the year at hand when roads are most liable to be damaged by heavy traffic, a campaign for strict enforcement of the law in regard to truck load limits has been launched by county authorities.

The drive is in charge of Deputy Sheriff Vane Ireland, who is specially commissioned to enforce the road and traffic laws.

Thomas McKinstry, truck driver residing on N. Market, the first man to be arrested for violation of the load limit rules, pleaded guilty before Probate Judge L. B. McNeal, yesterday and was given a suspended fine of $25. He paid the court costs, amounting to $6.

McKinstry, according to Ireland's report was driving a truck filled with gravel, the combined weight of the vehicle and load being 15,300 pounds. The limit allowed at this season of the year under rules recently put into effect by the county commissioners is five tons, or 10,000 pounds.

Effective Any Time

This limit is to be in effect at any time when prevailing weather conditions require precautions for protection of road surfaces. The maximum county road truck weight limit as fixed by law is 10 tons and the board of county commissioners are authorized to reduce this as they see fit during seasons of unusual moisture or thawing. The Marion County board decided upon a 50 per cent reduction.

On state roads the limit is eight tons, the state highway department having ordered a 25 per cent reduction.

McKinstry was arrested Wednesday afternoon as he was driving away from the gravel pit of the Marion Sand & Gravel Co., west of the city, the arrest being made by Ireland and Deputy Sheriff George W. Deal.

The county commissioners have provided Ireland with two modern truck-weighing devices, known as "loadometers," to use in his work. This equipment enables the officer to weigh any truck wherever it may be stopped on the highway.

The loadometers are first placed under the front wheels to get the weight of that half of the truck and then under the rear wheels. This furnishes an accurate record of the weight of the entire vehicle and its load.

HOTEL PORTER DIES IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Walks Silently and Unassisted into Death Chamber at Ohio Pen

Columbus, March 16—Walking silently and unassisted, into the death chamber at Ohio Penitentiary, Eddie Peppers, 21-year-old negro bellboy of Gallipolis, last night went to his death in the electric chair, still maintaining his innocence of a murder for which he was convicted last November.

"I'd rather not talk about it," he told the penitentiary chaplain when asked, a few hours before the execution, to tell the true story of the killing.

The youth as found guilty of attacking and strangling, with a towel, Mrs. Florence Buck, postmistress of Grimms Landing, W. Va. The murder was committed in a hotel room at Gallipolis last Aug. 15.

Peppers, a porter in the hotel, confessed but later repudiated his confession, declaring it was given under force. Two shocks were required for the execution last night. Physicians pronounced him dead at 8:10 o'clock.

METHOD DOCTORS ADVISE ENDS COLDS OVERNIGHT

Endorsed as Ideal Way to Stop Head Cold, Cough, Chest Cold —Pleasant for Home Use

No longer is it necessary to guess in choosing the quickest way to get rid of a stuffy head cold, bad cough or deep seated chest cold. For doctors have now endorsed a hospital tested method for home use which is giving hundreds of Marion people the same quick relief that came to C. J. Wrenn and so many others who have tried it.

Mr. Wrenn developed a bad head cold which nothing seemed to relieve. He couldn't sleep except to doze off a few minutes and wake up with the feeling that he was being choked. Then he called a doctor friend, who advised Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a concentrated mixture of wild cherry, terpin-hydrate and other ingredients which have relieved even the most extreme hospital cases.

With the first swallow he felt its comforting, healing warmth—from his nose passages deep down into his chest. Relief began instantly and the cold was clearing up noticeably in two or three hours. He continued the pleasant doses, and in another day or so, the doctor reports, there was no trace left of the cough or cold.

Note: See other cases reported daily—all certified to this paper by the attending physician.

Doctors find that this hospital medicine does far more than stop coughing instantly. It penetrates and heals inflamed linings of the breathing passages. Absorbed by the system it quickly reduces phlegm, helps allay that "feverish", grippy feeling and drives out the cold from the nose passages, throat and chest.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Cherry Pectoral now and you'll feel like a different person tomorrow. At all druggists, 60c; twice as much in $1.00 hospital size.

SURVEYOR LEAVENS GIVES ROAD REPORT

Marion and Morrow County Commissioners Set April 1 as Hearing Date

The report of County Surveyor C. R. Leavens on the plans for construction of a joint county road improvement scheduled for this year was received at a meeting of Marion and Morrow County Commissioners held here yesterday afternoon and April 6 was set as the date for hearing.

The section of road to be improved is 4.3 miles in length and the estimated cost is $30,500. Most of the route is in Marion County.

The hearing on April 6 set for 2 p. m., will be for the purpose of receiving claims for compensation and damages and any objections to the plans or schedule of assessments.

Officials attending the meeting yesterday were Commissioners Kinnamon, King and Hord of Marion County, Commissioners McClaren, Curl and Turner of Morrow County and Dan Richardson, Morrow County surveyor.

SENATORS MAY TRY OFFER PEACE MOVES

Seek To Bring Operators and Miners in Soft Coal Fields Together

Washington, March 16—Members of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee investigating the soft coal strike may take the initiative in bringing together operators and miners to agree upon some form of legislation to regulate the coal industry, it was indicated today.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Workers, promised the union would participate and would be willing even to discuss the question of wages. He indorsed tentatively a proposal patterned after the Watson-Parker Railroad Mediation Act.

Numerous operators appearing before the committee have also approved the general idea of a coal commission along the lines of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Few committee members believe that any regulatory legislation can be passed this session. The drive will be pressed next winter.

The committee recessed until Monday when it will resume its investigation into the union side of the controversy.

EVERYTHING SHE ATE WOULD TURN TO A SOUR ACID

Konjola Relieved Her of Four Years' Stomach Trouble

MRS. LENA CLAPPER

"Konjola has completely ended my health troubles and I owe this medicine my indorsement," said Mrs. Lena Clapper, 406 South 17th St., Columbus, Ohio.

"Everything I ate would turn to a sour acid in my stomach and the fermentation would cause a large quantity of gas to crowd around my heart. This made me short of breath and I would have terrible choking spells. I was continually belching a sour acid liquid into my throat and the gas pains would feel like someone was driving a knife into my side.

"I started with Konjola hoping it would help me as it helped many other people I knew, and it soon did everything claimed for it in my case. Now, everything I eat agrees with me, the gas pains, bloating spells and shortness of breath spells trouble me no more, my health is wonderful and I enjoy every bodily action and meal."

Daily Proverb—"The end of doubt is the beginning of repose."

Ruth Elder says she is going to make her next transatlantic attempt alone. Honestly, Ruth, it's going to be mighty lonesome out there with nothing but water around.

Noel Coward says that Shakespeare was a good poet clever enough to make his countrymen believe he was merely a playwright." Believe us, it take a mighty clever poet to do that.

A professional assassin down in Mexico is making a flat charge of one dollar for taking human life. Chicago gunmen are liable to consider price-cutting like that highly unprofessional.

"Every one," says Edith Sitwell, "is somebody's bore." We don't know Edith, but if she knows what she's talking about, it's up to all of us to limit it to that, and not become bores to everybody.

It is said that the film decree of the French government will likely force the sale of at least $1,000,000 worth over here yearly. Well, there's this consoling thought; we have accustomed ourselves, over here, to stand just about anything.

A London letter says the Prince of Wales has at last seemingly become unconscious of his hands, speaking at dinners with far greater repose than formerly. It has always been our observation that the auditors at dinner speeches showed the greater repose.

The International Cotton federation reports that the cotton consumption for the six months ended January 31 of this year was 256,000 bales greater than that of the corresponding six months ended January 31, 1927. The cotton tops must extend higher than we imagined.

A New York smuggling suspect testifies that he was to get $40 for bringing in $100,000 worth of diamonds. We'll say this for the international diamond smugglers; they can hardly be accused of overpaying their help.

There may be some question as to the value of some of the works in the art collection left by the late Senator W. A. Clark, but there can be none of the generosity of his widow and daughters who have superbly housed it in a spacious wing which they have erected to the Corcoran Art gallery in Washington, which they have donated, together with the collection, to that institution.

There have been many indictments of Chicago, but possibly none so sweeping of her citizenship as that of Justice Marcus Kavanagh, up there, who says: "The enforcement of the law rises just to a dead level with the public conscience of the province, community or city." Judged by the rule of this confession, we take the public conscience of Chicago to be in mighty bad shape.

William T. Ellis, of international Sunday-school lesson fame says: "Three ominous trends of our present American life are the Woolworthing of education; the professionalizing of religion; and the Manhattanizing of journalism and literature." Pause a moment, and think it over. Has not the Rev. Mr. Ellis come mighty close to the dead center of the bull's-eye?

"What Price Glory?"

There can not longer be much doubt but what Captain Walter Hinchcliffe and Mrs. Elsie MacKay have gone to their deaths in their attempt to make a westward flight across the North Atlantic. They have not been heard from since a few hours after their start. True, they may possibly have been picked up by some small vessel not equipped with wireless, but it is hardly probable.

Assuming them to be victims of the Atlantic, the record is twelve lives lost in five attempts, and a successful transatlantic flight from east to west not yet made.

Since the middle of last May eleven successful ocean flights have been made. Four of these were across the North Atlantic, two over the South Atlantic, four from the United States to Hawaii and one across the Pacific to Australia, the last, however, was not a non-stop flight.

During the same period the attempts at ocean flights have outnumbered the successful flights three to one. Some failures did not result in life loss, but the dead in those which did number twenty-seven. Ten lives were lost in the Dole race to the Hawaiian islands, twelve in attempts to cross the North Atlantic, two in a trial flights preparatory to a transatlantic crossing, and three in attempts to cross the South Atlantic.

And despite this record, preparations are being made for seven transatlantic flights, five of them being planned for the westward flight, conceded to be immeasurably more difficult and dangerous than the eastward flights, as the fates of Nungesser, Coli, Hamilton, Minchin, the Princess Lowenstein-Wirthseine, Hill, Bertaud, Payne, Tully, Medcalf, Hinchcliffe and Elsie MacKay testify.

"What Price Glory!"

Democracy as Practiced.

Repeatedly one sees in type the statement that Europeans do not respect us. Well, why should they, in the face of the lack of respect we Americans show for ourselves? We pride ourselves on our democracy, or think we do, and at every opportunity kowtow to titles and toady nobility. There are exceptional cases, of course, but the rule is as stated. We profess to have great contempt for the "decadent nobility" of Europe, and then we walk blocks to see a specimen, and, again as a rule, get stung. King George, of England, or King Albert, of Belgium, can walk the streets of his capital city and not collect the slightest following, provided that there are no Americans about. Foreigners have too much respect for their monarchs and for themselves to offend that way. If either king should attempt to do the same thing in an American city, the crowd which would collect would necessitate the calling out of police reserves.

Titled rakes travel about Europe with demi-mondaines and yet are fawned upon by really decent American women. We have seen American women of high social standing graciously pleasant to a young rake of high title who was known by them to be stopping at their hotel with one of the most notorious young women of the Paris half world as his traveling companion, and it was not at all an exceptional case.

And in this kowtowing to nobility some of the newspapers, especially those of the East, are among the worst offenders. No matter how silly the incident may be, it is exploited by them if it is that of one of noble lineage—God save the mark.

Has the reader ever noted the manner in which the New York papers note the near arrival of a transatlantic liner? Let him do so, and he will find something like this:

The Green Star liner, Resplendent, will arrive today with a full passenger list, among them being the Duchess de Whosit, Count and Countess de Rockpile, Baroness Deadbrouk, and so on. After the passenger list has been raked for titles, will come the name of some dancer who has "created a sensation at the Follies Bergere," a movie actress or two, a foreign violinist or third-class singer, and away down in the list will be a justice of the United States supreme court, some really notable figure in the American world of finance, industry or science, an army or navy officer or two and a half score of the New York social elect.

And if the thing is followed up the reader will find the order of listing practically the same, day after day, the year through.

If we continue to kowtow to Europeans, if we do not esteem ourselves, if we continue to place our notables in secondary position to holders of European titles, often broken-down holders at that, to music hall dancers and cinema people of negligible merit, how can we reasonably expect Europeans to show us esteem?

The Detroit News tells us that "an American teetotaler has traveled all the way to Uganda, Africa, to shoot a white rhinoceros." Why not? Of course, he could take a couple of shots of the present-day stuff and see white rhinoceroses, and pink ones and yellow ones and blue ones with orange polka dots, but nobody has yet succeeded in bring one of 'em down.

Propagandist Army Deported.

The French ministry of the interior this week announced the accomplishments thus far attained in the clean-up inaugurated as a result of the Communist riots of last August in protest against the executions of Sacco and Vanzetti over here.

Of 422 Communists arrested, 182 have already been convicted and sentenced and actions are pending against the other 240. In addition to this, the French authorities since the date stated have expelled from France 13,230 foreigners who have been acting as propaganda agents to arouse civil war, colonial revolt and army mutinies.

If France can thus handle foreign propagandists of revolt, why can not the United States? If the answer is that the French have laws making deportation of such propagandists easier of accomplishment, why can not we have such laws?

True, we have many citizens, some of whom are in official life, who would do their utmost to place obstacles in the way of the enactment of legislation to expedite the deportation of foreign propagandists, but why should the comparatively few be permitted to stand against the great majority? The foreign propagandists in France had friends and supporters, but their protests went unheeded. Why should the protests of those allied with enemies of our government avail over here?

France is making a real campaign against the forces of communism. What is the result? The French Communist party had a membership of 72,000 two years ago. The official bulletin of the party gave 55,213 as the party strength in 1927. This has been reduced to 46,000 at the present time. If France can drive out Communists, anarchists, direct-actionists and spreaders of all disloyal propaganda, why can not we do the same here in the United States?

Poems That Live.

THE ENDLESS RACE.

Say not, my brother, you have lost the race,
Albeit my feet be fleeter than your feet,
Yet in the trackless voids of Time and Space
Your path and mine invariably meet.

Swift is the wind, but so's the languid breeze
That gives it birth and sleeps within its breast.
The mother-bird that flutters in the trees
Can not outfly the fledglings in the nest.

The mountain stream that hurls in fitful leaps
From rock to rock, its waters cool and clear,
Can reach the distant, ever-silent deeps
No quicker than a dewdrop or a tear.

Come, brother, come. The day is not yet done.
The race goes on relentless as before.
The time to ask who's lost and who has won
Will be when Time and Distance are no more.

Till then let's drown my laughter in your tears
And cast away their soul-benumbing load,
And stride along unmindful of the jeers
Or cheers of those who loiter on the road.

"THE PORT OF MISSING MEN"—AND WOMEN.

Guard Against Diphtheria.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A recent report of the United States public health service reveals the distressing fact that diphtheria was much more prevalent in 1927 than for several years past. Over 80,000 cases were reported as against less than 70,000 in 1925 and 1926. There were about eleven deaths for a hundred thousand of the population.

We ought not to have so many cases of diphtheria. We need not have them. We have a means of guarding against this terrible disease. The toxin-antitoxin inoculation will spare your child this danger.

It is very young children, more babies almost, who die from diphtheria. It is a terrible death to witness. I never want to see another and wish there might never be another.

There are some things we can't help, but we can stop this evil. I beg of you to talk with your doctor about it. He will advise you and assume all the responsibility of the treatment.

Diphtheria is caused by a particular organism, called the Klebs-Loeffler bacillus. This germ requires from two to seven days to grow in the throat of the infected child.

In about a week or less, the presence of the disease is shown by the sense of illness and slight fever of the victim. It isn't like the high fever, bounding pulse and acute symptoms of tonsilitis. The symptoms are less acute, although the throat is swollen and stiff and shows white patches.

The membrane in the throat is different from the patches appearing in tonsilitis. It is a tough membrane, not easily removed and, when it is pulled off it leaves a bleeding surface.

The pulse is fast, but feeble. There are great weakness and prostration.

Whenever a young child complains of feeling ill, gives evidence of fever and has patches in the throat, send for the doctor at once. He will take a "culture" for examination in the laboratory. A bit of the material forming the patches in the throat will reveal whether it is really diphtheria, or whether it is a form of tonsilitis.

Anti-toxin is called for at once. The exposed children will be given protective doses of the same blessed remedy.

What we used to call "membranous croup" was really diphtheria. With our preventive measures that alarming disease has disappeared. Rarely now do we hear of a case.

There are some perfectly conscientious persons who object to serums and vaccines. They think it is dreadful to inject these into the delicate tissues of a child. They fear there may be contamination of the blood and all sorts of calamities.

I can sympathize with the fears of these good folks. But it has been proven over and over again by the most competent of scientific investigation that the anti-toxin has completely revolutionized the treatment of this dreaded and dreadful disease. Also it is one of the established facts that there can be established an immunity against fatal diphtheria. I truly believe that a parent is falling short of full duty if the child is not inoculated against this disease.

I beg of you to talk with your family doctor about it. Do not neglect to guard your family against the fatal disease.

Editorial Comment.

FLOOD CONTROL VS. RECLAMATION.

Secretary Jardine should strengthen himself with the farmers of Iowa and other parts of the corn belt by his opposition to reclamation projects which contemplate the employment of federal funds to greatly increase the tillable acreage of the country.

The head of the agricultural department has come into sharp conflict with the interior department which has sponsored plans to reclaim arid lands of the West and swamp land in the South.

In urging a halt upon developments which propose farm land expansion when 20,000,000 acres heretofore cultivated have been abandoned within the last seven years, Secretary Jardine performs a service not only to midwestern agriculture, but in so far as his protest will discourage the use of federal money for that purpose it is in the interest of public economy.

Congress has before it at this time the Columbia river project for which $150,000,000 of public money is sought toward the financing of a program ultimately to cost $300,000,000.

Spokesmen of the national grange and representatives of other agricultural bodies have voiced their opposition to the use of federal resources in this enterprise.

As to the South, the Iowa farmer is not adverse to expenditures of government funds to prevent a recurrence of the devastation of last year, but in so far as flood relief contemplates the reclamation of wide areas of swamp land, the effect must be injurious to farming in this section, at least until such time as consumption of foodstuffs approximates domestic production.

It will be unfortunate if reclamation becomes so identified with flood control as to provoke opposition in that part of the upper Mississippi valley which would otherwise be quite favorably disposed toward the fullest measure of federal aid.—Davenport Times.

DIGGING INTO OLD CIVILIZATIONS.

How inmates of the Imperial palace of Constantinople might have made their way in safety to the Forum through secret passages, while yet the great Constantine ruled in Byzantium, has been laid bare to the gaze of the modern traveler by the pick of the excavator now at work in modernizing the sewerage system of Constantinople.

Centuries ago when Constantine the Great transferred the capital of the Roman empire from Rome to Constantinople, his first task was to enlarge and beautify the new center of his domain. Among these many improvements was the erection of the Forum of Constantinople. This was connected with the Imperial palaces at the juncture of the Bosporus and the Marmora by a wide street, the Mesa, along either side of which colonnades are supposed to have run.

Contractors are now at work putting down a drain along the south side of the Divan Yolu, which is said to correspond almost exactly with the Byzantine Mesa. As these workmen proceed with their construction they daily meet fresh evidences of the remains of three civilizations, the Roman, the Byzantine and even the Greek. Remains of these great peoples come to light daily, and for want of funds it has been impossible to have the services of an expert archaeologist to watch the proceedings. Thus, is lost to mankind much of the most valuable kind of revelations respecting the three civilizations who have written upon the face of Constantine much of their history.

During the work of construction, three parallel tunnels running the full length of the Mesa, have been discovered, and judging from the type of masonry of two of these tunnels, it is accepted as true that they were used as passageways from the Imperial palaces and that there were two of them rather than one. The third tunnel was the same type of water conduits found at Ephesus many years ago.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Time and Times.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"What are the differences between 'true mean,' 'standard' and 'universal' time?—E. B. H., Grand Rapids."

All time is measured, fundamentally, by the rotation of the earth on its axis. Such measurement can only be made by watching the apparent movement of the sun—or a fixed star—through the sky, the apparent movement being caused, of course, by the actual turning of the earth in the opposite direction. The earth turns from west to east; the sun and stars appear to move from east to west.

We shall here attend solely to the time shown by the sun; that shown by the stars is only used by astronomers for special purposes.

The earth, then, makes one complete rotation in twenty-four hours of solar time, and this period of twenty-four hours we call a day. If the earth stood still in space while rotating on its axis the length of the day would be the same whether measured by the sun or by the stars. But because of the earth's annual revolution around the sun the time of one rotation on its axis is a little longer when measured by the sun's return to the meridian than when measured by the return of a star.

For this reason star time can not be used for ordinary purposes, since it falls out of accord with the regular succession of daylight and darkness produced by the motion of the sun.

But the length of the days as measured by the sun is not the same at all times of the year. The earth, traveling in an elliptical orbit around the sun, moves a little faster when it is nearer the sun, and a little slower when it is farther away. The consequent difference in the length of the day amounts in the extreme to about fifty-one seconds. To avoid the effects of this irregularity the sun is assumed to move at a perfectly uniform rate every day. This is called "the mean sun," and time based upon its returns to the meridian is called "mean time." This is the time kept by all good watches and clocks.

"Local mean time," then is based on the return of the "mean sun" to the meridian of any particular locality, once every twenty-four hours, the hours being all of equal length.

"Universal time"—a term not much used—is identical with Greenwich time, or the time marked by the mean sun's passage over the prime meridian of the earth, which, for convenience, has been made identical with the meridian running through the Greenwich observatory, near London. Astronomical events, such as eclipses, are conviently predicted in universal time, but the moment of their occurrence in local time must be calculated from the distance, east or west, in degrees of longitude, from Greenwich, or the chosen locality.

For, since there are twenty-four hours, or 1,440 minutes, in a day, and 360 degrees in the earth's circumference, every degree must correspond to four minutes, and every fifteen degrees to one hour. So when the sun, moving westward, is crossing the meridian of Greenwich it must have crossed the meridian of a place thirty degrees east of Greenwich two hours earlier, and it will cross the meridian of a place thirty degrees west of Greenwich two hours later.

To put it another way: When it is noon at Greenwich it is 2 p. m., local time, at a place thirty degrees east of Greenwich; 6 p. m., local time, in India, ninety degrees east of Greenwich, and midnight in the middle of the Pacific ocean, 180 degrees east. In the same way, when it is noon at Greenwich it is 10 a. m., local time, at a place thirty degrees west of Greenwich, 7 a. m., local time, at New York, seventy-five degrees west, and midnight in the middle of the Pacific ocean, 180 degrees west. It is in that line, 180 degrees east and 180 degrees west, of Greenwich, that the days both begin and end; i. e., there, in mid-Pacific, each successive day dies at the moment when its successor is born.

"Standard" time" is a system of grouping the hours in such a way that the local time of certain regularly-spaced meridians can be used as approximately correct over the whole breadth of zones each fifteen degrees—corresponding to one hour—wide. Thus reckoning begins with 0 hours at Greenwich. Five of the zones cross the United States from north to south. The first of these is the Eastern standard zone, whose central meridian is the seventy-fifth degree of longitude, West. Then follow Central time, based on the ninetieth degree; Mountain time, based on the 105th degree, and finally Pacific time, centered on the 120th degree. Near the borders of these zones the true time, or local time, may vary by half an hour from the Standard time. But the system has proved itself indispensably useful. — Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

At Monte Carlo.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

Monte Carlo, March 16—Monte Carlo is easily the most magnificent spot on the Riviera. What impresses you most is its scrupulous cleanliness and pin-like order.

Fifty years ago it was an uncultivated hillside which today is the smallest principality in the world overflowing with animation.

The season is not on, but withal the place is crowded with the thousands lured by the invigorating air, glorious sunshine and the cheerful panorama of sheer mountains and the azure sea. The harbor is dotted with white yachts flying the colors of all nations.

We arrived at the lunch time promenade. Monte Carlo parades before lunch and dinner in daily fashion show of what has been termed the smartest-dressed crowd in the world. Open carriages jog by with women occupants displaying their tiny sun parasols. Men are in cutaway morning coats.

Every texture of humanity—from the coarsest to the finest—rubs elbows in Monte Carlo. It is a hive of passion, disease, poverty and strident joy. All its sordidness is hidden with smothering grandeur.

Two days ago a young American sportsman spattered his brains on the Corniche road with a bullet after losing his entire inheritance in a single night's play, but the news of accidents never goes beyond Monte Carlo. The administration constantly boasts of its generosity.

This consists in giving those devotees of the gambling tables second-class fare to the nearest large city. About the time the Casino at Monte Carlo sends out to the world the news when some one breaks the bank, it rarely happens to one in perhaps a hundred thousand who lose. If you break the bank at Monte Carlo shows its fine streak of yellow by leaving the play.

Yet Monte Carlo has a tranquil charm. Here there are people who live here as long as they can uneventfully as they might in a small village. The matchless terraces and gardens are splendent with flowers, lull the visitor into hideous tragedies the mask of gaiety.

The Casino, the gambling structure, is flanked on one side by the Hotel de Paris and on the other by the Cafe de Paris. A flight of steps leads up to its entrance. The only thing the Casino offers free is the use of room where presumably you may lose your shirt for more money.

The claim is made the tables are operated with scrupulous fairness and are above suspicion. Each morning the roulette wheels are subjected—so they say—to minute mechanical tests. My opinion is there never was a more honest gambling hall and Monte Carlo is no exception.

If that appears crabbed, be patient. I lost $50 in ten minutes before dinner. Therefore the dinner I intended to eat had a bow appetite vanished. I'm a good loser and place up to a nickel.

The real nightly play at the Casino begins after dinner—between 9 and 10 o'clock. The crowds gather at the tables in a hushed solemnity which is only broken by the monotonous cry of the croupiers in their funeral garb—"Rien ne va plus." Their pockets tightly sewed up. They are all old boys and how!

It is fascinating to watch them shovel the plaques with their long handled rakes. Nobody talks out loud in the Casino. Everybody speaks in whispers. Taut expectancy is the atmosphere. At every table are the same feverish faces of the practiced gambler and those incredibly old women whose talon-like claws and who drink deep of fiery cognac and inhale innumerable cigarets.

After the Casino, a party of us hired a one-horse carriage toward Mentone and looked at the ampitheater of lights which outlines the Mediterranean and dotted the hillside flecks of yellow—like fireflies.

Proclaiming Husband's V

BY TEMPLE MANNING

It has always been a source of interest to me to study the different standards between people of the various status in different countries and races. What to a person of the world would be unspeakably rude and impolite would claim a man's lack of breeding and the high birth of an Easterner.

Take the women of the Senussi in the Sahara, as a specific instance. They have no opportunity to show to their neighbor friends just how wealthy and how high their husbands are to them. Of course this would be the height of ill-breeding but they have a most interesting way of showing it. When a Senussi woman calls on a friend she must needs take quite a while to prepare herself for the visit. She puts on every garment she possesses as well as every pin, every ring, every bracelet. For how would her neighbors know of her husband's wealth? And on arriving at her friend's she slowly divests herself of her adornments by one. Imagine the rivalry that must exist! Picture the feelings of the woman with more clothing and more jewelry than the other women in the tribe, and think of the envy of her associates.

The Senussi tribe is interesting for other reasons as well. They are one of the most mysterious and fanatical of the desert people. They live near Siwa, the site of a long-lost civilization. Here it is said the treasure of Mohammed is said to be hidden and of course, it is the scene of many exploration trips. However, the treasure has not yet been reported as found.

"Why don't you learn to dance?" asked a friend.

"I was a very good dancer," answered Senator Sorghum. "I decided not to take up the accomplishment. It looked to me like more planning to get more votes in a square dance test than in an election."

CHAPTER 50

"I see!" Bob Kingsley's voice was trembling. Chen-shu's betrayal, that Verna and himself—prisoners! The cleverest move that could have made were it Verna, instead of hating, thinking of it that Chen-shu's hopeless fallacy, had failed! "You thought," he said to Chen-shu, "you counted on [illegible] himself. He turned [illegible] face, and his eyes held [illegible] on Verna. But [illegible] as he spoke to her. "Verna!" he said. "You came to fight! I—I was——"

"Why," she supplied quickly [illegible]—and suddenly her face [illegible], and tears seemed very [illegible] eyes, "Could I do less? I [illegible] that it was these men who [illegible] brother, for that Chinaman [illegible] you called Chen-shu, told [illegible] he got me here; and he [illegible] unless I made you tell him [illegible] cipher was that he said you [illegible] to die too. Oh, must I talk [illegible] tortures! I—I went because, [illegible] Chen-shu told me this. I [illegible] knew——" Her voice fal[illegible] "don't you understand?"

[illegible] not in her words—it was in [illegible] her face, in her voice. It [illegible] Verna! There was no Java [illegible] Chen-shu, no peril, no world [illegible] only a song in Bob Kingsley's [illegible] It was like some wondrous [illegible] She cared! He started eagerly [illegible] her—only to have the bald [illegible] of his situation and of hers [illegible] instantly back to him again as [illegible] more thrust roughly up [illegible] wall.

"My God!" he cried out in sud-

DRINK WATER FREELY IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Also Take Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You

Flush your kidneys by drinking a glass of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority. He says that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weak; then you may suffer with a dull backache in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

den agony. "Why did you ever leave Kalawa?"

But now it was Java Dick who answered.

"It don't matter why she left there," he said coarsely. "What counts is that she's here, and that she croaks if you don't come across, young fellow Black Bob, with that bit of writing that was in one of them idols."

Bob Kingsley thrust his hands into his pockets—he wanted to clench them unseen. He wanted a moment to fight himself back to composure. Her life and his own depended on what he did and what he said now. No—that wasn't true—except temporarily. No matter what he did, or what he said, neither Verna nor himself would ever get out of this alive if Chen-shu had his way. The man had as good as said so when, thinking no doubt to inspire terror and leave no question in Verna's mind that he would carry out his threats, and so cause her to plead the more desperately with him, Bob Kingsley, to return the genuine cipher, Chen-shu had confessed to the murder on the Monowai. But Chen-su had overreached himself a little there. He had too plainly shown his hand. Chen-shu wouldn't let Verna go—and place a halter around his own neck? Chen-shu would never let him. Bob Kingsley, go, who had been an actual witness to the murder. This one fact was drumming, thudding, pounding at his brain now. Any promises that might be made, any bargain that might be struck, would be hollow, worthless, false. The only thing that was left for him to do was to fight for time. His nails now were biting into the palms of his hands. With time, something might happen! Fear? Yes, he knew fear now! With time, something might happen! That was the only chance there was.

"Well, what have you got to say?" prodded Java Dick savagely.

Bob Kingsley's hands came out of his pocket. He hunted for a cigarette—and lighted one. Both Java Dick and Chen-shu had drawn nearer to him. Java Dick's face was working viciously; but the blankness in Chen-shu's face was the more vicious of the two.

"Nothing for the moment," he said coolly. "You're assuming a good deal, aren't you? There are four two idols on the floor; and, so far as I know, those two pieces of paper there are the same ones that were in the idols when your friend Mindar Singh sneaked away from the Alita with them last night."

Chen-shu stooped down, and picked up the idols together with the two slips of paper. He extended the latter on the palm of his friend.

"One of these is the work of Hsi Yan," he purred; "the other is the work of one who, if he trusts too much to a nimble tongue, will find himself shortly deprived of the power of speech."

"Yes," growled Java Dick "don't you try to come any of your games on us! 'Twon't do you no good, or the girl either! You ain't got a chance! We've got you dead to rights. And in case you don't think so, and so's there won't be any mistake, I'll tell you where you stand. And, first-off, I'll have you know that turban-headed swine of a Mindar Singh ain't no friend of ours. 'Twas him that came down from Kalawa, and nosed around, and found out what the police couldn't find out. Savvy? The police were looking for the men who had been on Hsi Yan's junk—these chaps here, all except him that was killed last night. But nobody knew who's been on Hsi Yan's junk, and nobody know what he'd come of the junk anyhow—but if you like to know, I'll tell you. They sailed over a bit up the coast, and came to overland to Singapore. Then they kept stolen away, but Mindar Singh spotted 'em, and watched 'em. And last night he sneaked in on Hsun Chen whose turn it was to keep the idol and dropped him cold with a knife.

"So that part of his story, at least, was true," Bob Kingsley exclaimed involuntarily.

"You're right, it was, if he slipped you that!" snarled Java Dick. "But he ain't counting pisen it now! He'll pay for it, you can take my bloomin' word!"

"But not all in one payment!" purred Chen-shu with a sly smile. "No man could pay so great a debt except little by little to his heavenly ancestors—just a little at a time! Does the Heaven-born in his vastly superior wisdom know of any other way whereby the payment might be fully made?"

Bob Kingsley did not answer. His fingers itched to close around the soft, scrawny throat. God help Mindar Singh if he were, as he obviously was, in their clutches! He looked around him. Verna still stood near the door, still held, as he was held, by a group of Chinamen. Her eyes met his bravely—and she smiled. He felt the color leave his face. He could not smile.

"Well, d'ye see?" went on Java Dick in an ugly tone. "That's Mindar Singh's end of it, and the rest ain't hard to guess. Me and Chen-shu's been pals for years. I wasn't on no junk at Kalawa, but, swipe me, I'm in on the pickings now! I tried to get you to come back here last night after you'd said you had one of them idols, but you were too busy. I'd have got you if you'd had. You figured I'd stand in with you on account of that little talk we had about going after opium five years ago, didn't you? That's where you run up against it, Black Bob! You and me might have been pals—eh? Too bad now—ain't it?"

"You're making a damned long story out of this—and it's a bit tiresome!" said Bob Kingsley coldly.

Java Dick, scowled—and suddenly shook his fist in Bob Kingsley's face.

"Is that so?" he raged. "Well, binny, I'll make the rest of it short enough! Me and Chen-shu and Won Fu here had a confab. You'd showed one of the idols here. From the shore we kept watch on the Alita. We didn't know where Mindar Singh had gone—but we caught him when he swam ashore just before daylight. Savvy that? And Mindar Singh squealed—because he had to. And we took the two idols from him, but one of the ciphers was a fake—and you faked it.

"It wouldn't work out, and it wasn't the same paper, and it wasn't the same writing. And when Won Fu saw the girl come ashore from another schooner, and Chen-shu said you was sweet on each other and the rest was easy. Maybe you've heard that Java Dick don't take chances when there's a sure bet? Well, I wasn't taking any chances! 'Go to hell!' says you at the polite invitation to come across with what he wants—and dies! I know your kind! I've seen 'em! But you don't talk way when your girl goes with you! That's short and sweet, ain't it? You know now why she's here. You tell us where that paper of Hsi Yan's is, or what we'll do before your eyes'll make you sick, and afterwards we'll attend to you! You get it straight, ain't you? Now what do you say—and say it quick!"

There was a new movement in the room—an eager, restless, excited movement. The line of faces seemed to Bob Kingsley to be rising in upon him from all sides. They all looked alike, those faces. In all of them was the greed that Hi Yan so artfully had played upon with his Machiavellian touch. It showed in the narrow eyes, it showed in the distended nostrils and the slightly parted lips—and behind the crude, glee still was a deadly menace. His eyes swept the circle, and rested on one face that seemed even more threatening than any of the others. The man with the crutch had thrust himself suddenly forward—and now was laughing facetiously.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Friday. It was some colder but clear and windy. Just the right kind being for them. It is only when it is cold and there is snow on the ground, and maybe a puddle or ice water under the window for his dinner pail to land in, that he looks at me like I was doing him dirty. It is just beginning to get light now when I get up, and by the time I have got the fire made and the ashes looked out, and the feed mixed for the dumbed brutes, it is light enough so that I don't have to light the lantern, and the hands is mostly there.

I was milking the old cow and most of the bunch was there, and all at once the Last Bag of Tripe, which had just got Nibs with a ball of mud yesterday, hollered from out in the alley: "Thomas Aristides, is Nibs there?" I was going to say "Sure," but Nibs shook his head at me, and went tiptoeing across till he got to the hole into the alley, and when I hollered, "No," the hand said to one side and the Last Bag of Tripe's hat started to come through. And Nibs made a jump at it and grabbed it, and it was on a cabbage that had got frore and was so rotten it was mushy, and Nibs had grabbed it where the ears ought to have been, and he got both hands full of stop, and the Last Bag of Tripe was holding the stump of the cabbage, and while Nibs was looking at his hands to see what was on them the Last Bag of Tripe crested him in the face with the rest of the cabbage, and then we could hear Dan splitting the wind down the alley while Nibs was getting the cabbage out of his eyes and mouth.

Nibs said that that settled it, he had let the Last Bag of Tripe live on his mother's account but now he was going to catch him and pull him apart with his bare hands.

When he said that Feeble looked at him and said, "I declare, Cabbage Face, you are the nerrest insect I ever heard buzz!" And when she said that we all hollered, and Nibs was so mad he was white, and he hollered, "You are all a bunch of crooks and I can lick any of you," and when I pushed back the milk stool and started to get up, he added, "except Thomas Aristides."

When I came out to go to school with them Nibs had faded, and I expect the Last Bag of Tripe has only a little while to live. He had to stay after school and when we went home Nibs was hanging around outside waiting for him.

My mother bought a bucket full of eggs from a little boy from the country today for half price, and there wasn't a good one in the bunch. So she was so mad she made me go to bed right after supper.

Love's Embers

KATIE FINDS LOCKET

IT took all my self-control to keep the startled interest out of my face and eyes as Katie dramatically drew her hand from behind her and dangled before me the thin gold chain with its pendant which I had last seen around Eleanor Lincoln's neck. With the conviction that my garrulous little maid must not guess my eagerness to examine the ornament, put out my hand calmly and took the beautiful bauble, asking quietly:

"Where did you find this, Katie?"

"On the floor of hall after dot telephone her aunt vos dying und you go home by her," Katie returned. Her voice had the sullen note which always invests it when one of her melodramatic suggestions is received without enthusiasm.

"But there is something strange about this, Katie," I argued. "It is the chain Miss Lincoln always wears around her neck, and she changes the pendant with every gown she wears."

"Sure ting," my little maid retorted softly. "You tink I don't know dot? I see dose different tings every time she coom by us, un I tink she hat pretty mooch jewelry und I wonder how she get so mooch. But, look—do you see dees? All time she have two rings hanging down, from chain—one outside her dress vich she change, und dees oder vun inside. Und shoost look at dees. I dont know mooch but I know dees ting vort more dough dan dees whole farm—und—look at picture inside! You tink dot girl hat dot gref to her? Not in million years. She steal dees ting, I tell you. She one of gang of jewel thieves. Ve all be murdered in our beds, I tell you."

It would be fatal to laugh, I knew that, but I controlled my risibles with difficulty, for my little maid is almost irresistibly humorprovoking when she gives rein to her motherless imagination. The next instant, however, all desire for laughter left me, for Katie had put her hand upon the pendant which Eleanor Lincoln had kept hidden and pressed her finger upon a catch which opened at the end disclosed an exquisitely-painted miniature of one of the most beautiful and most widely known faces in the world.

The right of that face in its costly setting the knowledge that Eleanor Lincoln had worn it next her heart and was constantly testing its safety with nervous, groping fingers suddenly threw open a door of conjecture so startling that I almost let the miniature fall to the floor. But I knew that above all things I must not let Katie suspect the staggering theory which had come to me. There was but one thing to be done and that was to placate her by pretending to believe the ridiculous explanation of Miss Lincoln's behavior which she had evolved.

"You may be right, Katie," I said slowly, trying to keep as far as possible from direct assertion. "But if you are, you realize, don't you, that there might be awful consequences if you talk to anyone else about this. We must not put them on their guard, must we?"

Katie brightened perceptibly.

"Now you talking," she said enthusiastically. "Und you bet your boots I vas mollego to nobody. I promise you dot, honest true, black and blue, hope to die——"

"That's right," I interrupted, cutting short the flow of childish vows which she had picked up with her assortment of American slang phrases. "I don't want you to mention this to anybody until I give you permission, not even to Jim."

"Oh! been!" My little maid's tone consigned her husband to the outer limbo of intelligence. "I tell dot Jeem nodings. But look-it! You say you not vant to put dem on guard. Vot dot Lincoln vomans tink yes she find out dot locket gone? Tell me dot, vance?"

A Remarkable Story

Mr. John Reckle, R. 3, Prospect, Ohio—one of the best known farmers of Marion County, suffered something terribly, for twenty years. Thousands of dollars were wasted in a vain effort to find relief, not speaking of the suffering endured. So much so, in fact, that Mr. Reckle was compelled to give up farming about eight years ago. About seven months ago Mr. Reckle availed himself of the Sykodoner System. Now he has gained forty pounds in weight, feels and looks like a new man; saying he would not take one thousand dollars for what it did for him; and that he is again getting ready to go back to farming.

Be sure to see the Sykodoner Man today—at the Jennings, 329 West Center St., Marion. Hours, daily: 8 to 5; also evenings and Sunday forenoons. Do a kind act by sending this to an afflicted friend.—Adv.

Beauty Pageants Banned By Atlantic City People

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 16—Relegated, and after much careful consideration, Atlantic City has turned thumbs down on the annual beauty pageant.

"There will be no parade of beautiful young American girls in bathing suits along the boardwalk for the purpose of selecting a "Miss America" this year or any other year. For, it has been decided, such spectacles are not truly representative of young American girlhood but are largely a "congregation of girls seeking personal advertising and profit."

Instead, plans may be considered for some other form of annual event designed to broadcast the name of Atlantic City.

Beauty contests have come in for severe criticism after residents of the city have taken the matter to heart. The decision to do away with the pageants was reached after weeks of general discussion among citizens.

Geneva. Here is her story:

"It was in Geneva about a year ago. He was strolling around the gaming room of the Casino when his eyes fell upon the tall, slender, chestnut-haired girl. The effect was electrical. Turning to one of his three aides, he said: 'I must know her. I am madly in love with her.'

"The ex-maharajah left the Casino and retired to his suite, probably to have one of his aides read poetry to him, as is his custom when in a romantic mood.

"The 'mute courtship' began the next day after a formal introduction had been arranged. Thereafter Miss Miller, a woman relative and the ex-maharajah were frequently seen together. The former maharajah's first token of affection was a diamond studded watch and then a fiery solitaire set in a slender platinum ring."

Practically the entire population of the community stood in the blazing sunshine watching the colorful procession as it followed the lumbering elephants through the dusty streets. LYNX ESCAPES

Strange Animal Free After Being Captured Near Toledo

TOLEDO, March 16—An animal, believed to be a Canadian lynx, which has been at large near the villages of Bono and Reno for the past several weeks, escaped this morning during an attempt to transfer it into an improvised wire enclosure, Otto Dolon reported today. It was captured alive yesterday.

Stories that a panther, a wild cat, or a lynx was stealing chickens and that, on several occasions it "shadowed" persons in that vicinity, after night, were at first discredited. So many people reported having seen the animal, however, that a number of hunts for it were instituted in the last few days.

Dolon and two companions encountered it unexpectedly yesterday while walking through Nile Woods near Dolon's farm. The animal was perched in a tree. The three men were unarmed, but decided they would attempt to capture the huge cat.

The beast is about 30 inches long, a foot and a half in height and has a brown, catlike body. The prevalent theory is that the lynx crossed the ice from Canada.

HINCHLIFFE, British fast, now injured but on the Atlantic, is the type of Britisher that Kipling likes to describe. It was hard for him to get enough danger. He won the Distinguished Flying Cross by bringing down nine enemy planes and two captive balloons in the war. He did not stop battling when he was shot down in France in 1917 and lost his right eye. If courage can conquer the Atlantic, he will win.

BRITISH women also possess fine flying courage, the Hon. Elsie MacLean, third daughter of Lord Inchcape, goes with Hinchliffe. Another British woman, Lady Carberry, piloting her own plane, was killed with a passenger at Nairobi, Africa, on Tuesday. It does not flatter men's vanity, but there is little doubt that women possess greater courage than men. Ask your dentist.

If it were not so, the Lord probably would not have chosen women for the most painful, dangerous task of motherhood. If the earth depended on men for population it would be thinly populated.

WOODEN PLANE MAY BE ENTRY IN RACE

Will Be Capable of Carrying Eight Persons; France Hopeful

Paris, March 16—An airplane constructed of wood and capable of carrying eight persons may be entered in the Paris-New York race this year. If it successfully connects the builders by air France will claim that her inventors were the first to design a practical transatlantic plane.

The aircraft is the conception of Barrault, wartime "ace." Raymond Saulnier who is busy contributing aeronautical aviation to the Parisan Press says Barrault showed the completed plans to Rene Fonck in 1923. Fonck is said to have exclaimed: "This is the best airplane ever planned for long distance flying." Fonck tried to help Barrault obtain 500,000 francs for construction and a subsequent transatlantic attempt. They were promised oil, fuel and two motors.

Fonck, failing to find further backing, soon gave up the project and went to America where he negotiated for the Sikorsky in which he narrowly escaped death at Garden City in 1926.

Barrault's brain-child would be powered with two motors in tandem. It would have double controls with two seats for pilots, thus obviating the necessity of changing places on reliefs. The central cabin would give access to the motors while in full flight. Because of its wooden construction, the inventor says, the airplane's weight is exceedingly less than that of all other types.

Experts say the ship is one of the most unusual ever designed. Barrault and friends are now going the rounds of wealthy aviation enthusiasts hoping to raise funds that will push to completion the blue printed idea which the inventor hopes will take off to cross the Atlantic this summer.

No man, no matter what his prejudice, can hold out long against a man who likes him.

MACHINE MUSIC TO OUST ORCHESTRA?

Composer Makes Prediction in Current Number of Magazine of Arts

Paris, March 16—Music in the near future will be machine-made" predicts George Antheil, young American composer writing in a current number of "Transition," a modern international magazine of the arts published in the Latin Quarter in Paris.

"I believe that very soon there will be electrical machines which can automatically reproduce every sound wave," he continues, "and which will not only replace the old orchestra but create every sound on earth the ear is capable of hearing.

"Until then we must occupy ourselves more and more with mechanical instruments. The greatest beauty will be that which comes out of the esthetic possibilities of the instruments."

Mr. Antheil is well-known in Paris for his production of a mechanical ballet which brought the gendarmes to the scene. So much wind same from the airplane propellors, which were some of the "instruments" used, that many in the audience put up umbrellas.

COMING STARS of the MOVIES

Barbara Kent

HER name is Barbara Kent, and she didn't change it for pictures. She bears the distinction of being one of the few beauty contest winners to make good in Hollywood. She's been chosen one of the 1927 Wampas Baby Stars, and she's a Canadian.

Barbara was born in Cadsby, Alberta, and then her parents moved to Santa Cruz, California. And of course Hollywood was the next stop after winning that contest.

She's just a mite over five feet high and weighs 105 pounds. She's one of the few Hollywood girls with unbobbed tresses. Maybe because her hair is red. She's being featured as ingenue lead in several important productions this year.

By FRANCES JENNINGS

After losing her lover in the war [illegible] ability to sing in an illness [illegible] the very modern young heroine [illegible] Queer Night" turns in despair [illegible] unhappy marriage as "a way out." [illegible] she struggles bravely to find [illegible] world, which, as she believes, is fast submerging her very individuality. She fails however to find [illegible] person except in the brother, [illegible] who was made of the "finer [illegible] herself.

Finally breaks under the [illegible] supporting an increasingly [illegible] family. Denise is again left to the ministrations of her ever-practical sister and mother, whose common sense tactics grate on her "finer" senses, and to the unemotional, groping love of Horace, her husband, whom she's found to be "rich and kind."

Denise at last hits on a plan to save her individuality, "a child coming out of the infinite like the meteor of a November Night, untouched by the herd," a child to receive the affection she could not give her mother, sisters or husband. The world seemed brighter for Denise until she came to the sudden realization that the child . . . for whom she was longing as something to be her very own, would also be Horace's and his pride in and plans for the unborn infant led her to seek a new stronghold in a church. But that fastness too proves negligible when the plodding, undemanding Horace asserts himself and declares that his child will not be reared as a member of that faith.

Robbed of her last refuge Denise sinks into a passive state which reaches its climax on a "November night" when her son is born and dies. With it dies her selfish pride and she turns questioningly to Horace, who is kind.

Similar to "Miss Tiverton Goes Out" and the other novels by this anonymous author, "November Night" is a book which deals with the emotions, the changing moods of persons who are of little consequence to any but their own exacting selves.

"THE GENERAL'S RING" BY SELMA LAGERLOF

GENERAL LOWENSKOLD, an ancestor of that Charlotte Lowenskold who loved the young pastor so faithfully in the book of her name, is the hero of Selma Lagerlof's new story, "The General's Ring," which Doubleday, Doran have just published. To be sure the old general was dead and buried in his finery with the great silver ring that his general and King Charles XII had given him thrust on his finger so St. Peter and his monarch would recognize him beyond the pearly gates. But before the tomb was closed a thief coveted the ring. Reaching back from beyond the grave, the thwarted old soldier followed the holder of the ring with a vengeance that wrought havoc in many a peasant's family.

This haunting and beautiful story is printed and bound in a little volume of distinguished make-up with labels and papers and jacket designed by Edna Reindel.

The author, Selma Lagerlof, is one of the "twelve great women of the contemporary world" chosen by Emil Ludwig, the noted biographer in a recent newspaper article. "Miss Lagerlof was known to few," he says, "even when she was 34; not until she was that age did the greatest living writer turn to the story of her childhood and her family. Long did she hesitate as to the form in which she should cast her narrative; then, with the touch of a real artist, she drew the portraits of the people of her own homeland, Sweden. Since then everything written by her springs from the soil in which she is rooted, and in this respect she is akin to the great Norwegian, Hamsun—indeed, the fact that she is a woman is seldom betrayed in her writings."

FIND LETTERS IN "OLD PAPERS"

SURPRISINGLY important was the bundle of musty old documents bought as "waste paper" about the year 1870 from William Patterson's old warehouse on Gay Street, Baltimore. Hoofline and Murdock, dealers in papermaker's material, were the purchasers. In the lot was found a bundle of English and French letters on the subject of the marriage of Betsy Patterson famous Baltimore beauty, to Jerome Bonaparte, youngest brother of Napoleon, probably the most brilliant of international marriages. It is from those letters that Daniel Henderson has largely obtained material for a biographical novel of the intriguing Betsy—"The Golden Bees" (Stokes).

WILLIAMS WRITES ANOTHER NOVEL

Ben Ames Williams has followed "Splendor", a serious story of an average man, with a mystery tale of horror, "The Dreadful Night." This is his second mystery novel—the first, a tale of the murder of a member of a week-end party marooned by a snowstorm in an isolated lodge in Maine, was published a little over a year ago. LEGION OF HONOR CROSS GIVEN WRITER

THE Cross of the Legion of Honor has been awarded Clara Longworth de Chambrun for her biography of Shakespeare entitled "Shakespeare: Actor-Poet," according to word just received from Paris by her American publishers, Appleton. With the exception of Madame Curie, as far as can be ascertained, this is the only case of a French nationality being so honored by the French government for scholarship and original research. Madame de Chambrun's biography is remarkable for its brilliant treatment of Shakespeare in the manner of the "new" biography as well as for the new material which it contains concerning the relations of Shakespeare to Florio, the contemporary Italian scholar.

DISTRICT MEETING IS PLANNED BY PYTHIANS

Lodges from Four Counties To Meet in Marion During April

Plans for a district Knights of Pythias meeting to be held here in April for lodges of four counties were discussed at the weekly session of Marion Company No. 15, Uniform Rank, last night. The Uniform Rank expects to sponsor the event and to direct the general arrangements.

Counties to be represented are Crawford, Wyandot, Marion and Morrow. They comprise what is known as the tenth Ohio district.

Definite action on the program will be taken at a meeting of Pythian deputies representing the four counties to be held here next wek. It is expected to have at least one grand lodge officer present to deliver an address and an invitation will be extended to Joseph Judge to confer the rank of page on a class of candidates.

Nineteen members of Canby Lodge No. 15 of this city were guests of Bellefontaine lodge, Wednesday night, and conferred the page rank on 18 candidates. The Marion workers were entertained at dinner by the Bellefontaine lodge members.

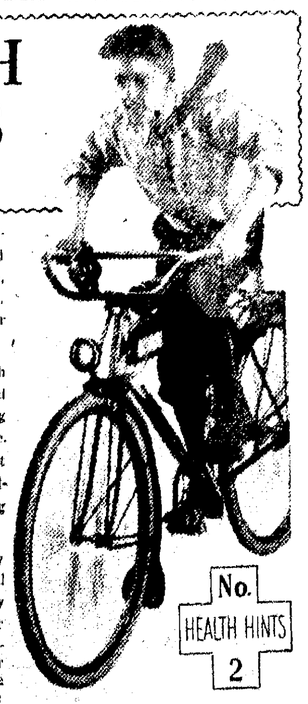
HEALTH HINTS For Parents



Here's a way to make the most delicate boy hale and hearty, and "hard as nails." A way to build his body, and put on weight. Heed this hint, and no boy or girl of yours need ever take another cathartic!

Most ailments of children begin with being bilious; and the trouble then and there, with a spoonful of California Fig Syrup. Nothing stronger, nothing else. The bowels will do their duty without using force! If your children have already contracted the laxative habit, fig syrup will wean them away from it.

California Fig Syrup is a purely vegetable product. It will do any child a world of good; it is, in fact, a very wonderful conditioner for children or adults. Its rich, fruity flavor is so delicious, it's no hardship to take! Nor can it harm even an infant! Only one caution: be sure to get the genuine California Fig Syrup; don't neglect to say "California." It isn't expensive—sixty cents for a generous bottle at all dealers.

Try California Fig Syrup two weeks on any child, and let his altered appearance and actions tell the full story! —Adv.

BEGG OPPOSES FEDERAL FLOOD PAYMENT PLAN

Cleveland, March 16—Gen. James T. Begg, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, was on record today as opposing the plan of having the federal government assume the entire cost of flood control.

In a speech before the chamber of commerce forum here last night, Gen. Begg declared:

"I feel that those states receiving the immediate benefit and the lion's share of the profit from these improvements ought to be willing to accept their fair share of the burden and not look to the Ohio to contribute on the same basis.

Under the proposal by which the government would assume the cost, Ohio would be required to take on a tax burden of approximately $400,000,000, he said since the complete flood control program contemplates an expenditure of about five billion dollars.

The speakers also paid tribute to chambers of commerce, characterizing them as a "stabilizing influence both for business and politics."

SOUTH CHARLESTON WORRIES ABOUT LAND

South Charleston, March 16 — The future disposition of the great Henry Ford farm tract of more than 2,000 acres in this vicinity is still nearly as much of an enigma as it has been in the past two years since the land was purchased by the Detroit auto and railroad magnate.

Various stories have been broadcast regarding Ford's plans for the South Charleston land development, but none have borne the stamp of Ford's name or his official approval.

The farms have been leased for a term of time to farmers and the land is practically all under cultivation. It was purchased at fancy prices and represents about $200 an acre, average, a high price for farm land in this section at the present price of around $90 to $100 per acre.

With the main line of the D., T. & I. Railroad passing through the vicinity of the Ford land, it is held entirely probable that the property will eventually be used for some purpose connected with the development of the railroad or its subsidiary properties.

South Charleston experienced a flare-up in real estate values when the Ford land was purchased, but it did not last.

Columbus, March 16—Although Coroner J. A. Murphy returned a verdict of "suicide" in the death of Clement Walter, 31, son of a city official here, police today continued their investigation into the shooting. Cleveland, March 16—Details of a contract, calling for complete turnover in control of 13 Cleveland theaters by Cleveland realtors to the Marcus Loew, Inc., interests, now part owners of the chain, was expected to be made public here today, following receipt of information from Orange, N. J., that negotiations for such a deal had virtually been completed in that city yesterday.

The information came from Joseph Larouge, Cleveland real estate dealer who, with associates, long has been connected with proprietorship of Cleveland theater leaseholds.

Valuations in the sale, it was said, total between $7,000,000 and $10,000,000.

REOPEN PROBE OF DIVORCE METHODS

Cleveland, March 16—An investigation of alleged illegal methods used by Cleveland residents in an effort to obtain divorces in Cleveland, today had been reopened following admission of Mrs. Elizabeth Seidenfeld, wife of a wealthy New Yorker, that she had sworn falsely to an affidavit in connection with her divorce suit here.

Judge Weygandt, before whom Mrs. Seidenfeld made the admission, this afternoon ordered the rule on a request of Morris Seidenfeld, Mrs. Seidenfeld's second husband to have her suit dismissed on the ground that she had not been a legal resident of Ohio for a year prior to filing the proceeding.

SH-h-h! Little Whispers About A Bad Breath

There is nothing more common or more disagreeable than a bad breath. And the sad part of it is, that while we're quick to detect it in others, we seldom think of ourselves.

A sour, "gussy" or acid stomach is most always the cause of Bad Breath, and it doesn't matter how often you brush your teeth, wash your mouth, or how little or what you eat. If your "stomach's off" your breath will tell the story. But if you'll keep your stomach sweet and clean and free from acid you won't have to worry about a bad breath, gas, sourness or belching.

To cleanse and sweeten a sour stomach; to neutralize the acid and purify the breath, nothing is easier or better to use than ordinary Bisurated Magnesia, which can be obtained in small quantities at any good drug store. Use it after every meal. Bisurated Magnesia is a powerful ant-acid and stomach corrective. A pure product, pleasant, harmless and quickly effective. Warning: Do not confuse Bisurated Magnesia—a Chemist's product—with any of the Magnesia preparations such as milk or citrate. Bisurated Magnesia comes only in powder or tablets. Ask your druggist.—Adv.

The Baker Music Company, Inc., has been bought by The Henry Ackerman Piano Co. By combining these two largest Music Stores under one management and one roof, we can offer the best features of each store, and make a still bigger, better music store to serve the music-loving people of Marion and surrounding counties. All the accounts of the Baker Music Co. will be transferred to The Henry Ackerman Co., at 148 S. Main St., and all accounts payable there. Old customers of The Baker Music Co. will find the same personal attention at the Ackerman store that they found at the Baker store, with the same lines of sheet music, music teachers' and musicians' supplies. Your favorite sales person will greet you there after this week.

ON THE

Streets of Marion

WITH THE STAR STAFF

PASSING of the old Model T Ford and its exclusive type of gear shift is beginning to bring about changes in transportation. Drivers who for many years have manipulated the speed mechanism of the flivver with their feet and have become expert in so doing, are finding that they have difficulties to overcome in mastering the hand gear shift.

H. H. Breese, veteran delivery driver employed by the Anthony Laundry Co., is one of the people Model T Ford who recently mastered the old method to the new hand or center type of control.

A new delivery truck with a hand gear shift was placed in service by the laundry company this week and Breese was assigned to the operation. The undertaking was somewhat of a problem at first, for Breese had driven a Ford for Model T for many years, about two hours of instruction and a couple of the agent who sold the new car, he mastered its intricacies and is now traveling over his delivery route without the slightest trouble.

Veteran Drivers

Mr. Breese and Harry Johnson, the Anthony Laundry Co. has two delivery service employes with records that are few if any equals in the city of Marion. Breese has been with the laundry, under present and former management, for approximately 25 years and Johnson's tenure runs about two years longer than that.

They started when horse drawn vehicles were used and when many of Marion's streets were traversed with extreme difficulty during some seasons of the year. Few men in Marion are as familiar with the city's thoroughfares as these two veterans. They can tell the location of about any street without a second's hesitation and are almost equally familiar with the addresses of residents.

They have been in direct contact with the city's growth as actual witnesses, all building and street improvements during the last quarter of a century having come within their view as they traversed their delivery routes.

They have also observed the growth and development of many local citizens from childhood to maturity. Numbered among the city's leading business and professional men are those who were children in the homes where Breese and Johnson years ago began to deliver laundry.

Few local citizens, in fact, are as capable of picturing an interesting panorama of Marion's progress as are these two veteran employes of the Anthony company.

POSSIBILITY of a romance being hatched from an egg almost vanished one day this week when the egg was broken in a local grocery store. Fragments of the shattered shell were rescued and pieced together, however, and Dan Cupid's prospects revived.

The egg question was one of those on which some maiden had written her name and address at the packing house.

A youthful male clerk at the grocery found the egg and decided to take advantage of the opportunity for a flirtation by mail. But as he held his trophy and its inscription, another clerk of a non-romantic temperament playfully dashed the egg to the floor.

Whereupon the boy with a longing for an adventure in love burst into tears of wrath and disappointment and wanted to fight.

Finally the storm quieted and more sympathetic associates in the store helped him assemble the eggshell and figure out the address.

The youthful clerk has written his first letter and according to latest reports was awaiting anxiously for his reply.

SOMEBODY missed out on a nice fur scarf when a large fox was released from a steel trap in a field near the Union Stock Yards recently by William H. Hafer, platform foreman at the C., C., C. & St. L. Railway freight house. Mr. Hafer, who was inspecting the switch lights, was attracted to the scene by the howls of the fox, which he stated looked like a large dog. When he attempted to release the animal it showed an inclination to do battle and he was forced to call to another man working a short distance away for assistance. Following a scrimmage in which Mr. Hafer received a few scratches on his hands, the animal was released and was last seen heading westward at a gait that would make a high powered automobile look sick.

For Beauty

Flush out the poisons in this pleasant way

Beauty of complexion comes from the inside. So does all a woman's charm. Poisons and wastes in the system destroy them.

The quickest and best way to eliminate those poisons as they occur is this:

Drink a glass of water in the morning, hot or cold. Add a little "Epsonade." It will make a sparkling, pleasant drink. And it will flush the intestines quickly. You will see the results in an hour.

The method is gentle. It is due to acids of lemon and grape.

When you learn what his method means to you, have it always ready when you need it. It will bring you quick results, and gentle, any hour of the day.

Prove this by a test. Learn how easy it is to correct wrong conditions without delay. Your druggist will sell you a small quantity of "Epsonade" at small cost.—Adv.

Jury Disagrees

Following a trial lasting a day and a half, the jury which heard a suit for $15,287 damages brought against F. Adelbert Rogers on behalf of Clarence Rizer, 15, reported a disagreement yesterday afternoon. The jury was discharged by Judge Scofield and the case continued until the next term of court. Another trial will be held at that time, it was stated.

The jury reported a disagreement at 2:30 o'clock after about three hours' deliberation.

The suit is the outcome of an accident which occurred on Bennett-st, near Waterhouse, Dec. 16, 1926, when the Rizer boy, riding a bicycle, figured in a collision with an automobile driven by Rogers. As a result of his injuries it was necessary to amputate the boy's left arm.

Grant E. Monser and Theodore Ochs of the law firm of Monser, Young & Monser represented the plaintiff. William Geer of Galion and L. E. Myers of Marion were attorneys for the defendant. The suit was brought by Osa Rizer as the next friend of Clarence Rizer.

All property has been disposed of with the exception of a few accounts which he has been unable to collect, the receiver states. He suggests that they be offered at auction as "cooperate assets."

Farm tests on farm of J. C. Seabrook, Rockville, S. C. DIPDUST treated seed yielded 26 bushels more per acre than same seed not treated.

Increase Your Potato Yield
15 to 25 Bushels per Acre
with This Instantaneous Dip

Treat your seed potatoes as fast as you can scoop them up. Just dip 'em in DIPDUST solution and out again—all ready to plant. DIPDUST protects the seed and insures a heavy, profitable yield. It's much more effective than the old-fashioned "two-hour soak" method—besides there is not the slightest danger of injuring the seed or even cut seed.

Just one trial of DIPDUST you will never again waste two days treating seed potatoes or spend two weeks worrying about poor stands. Compare this New Treatment with the older ones:

THE NEW WAY — Dipdust Organic Mercury Disinfectant	THE OLD WAY — Formaldehyde or Corrosive Sublimate
Requires less than 1 minute. One man can easily treat from 200 to 300 bushels of potatoes per day.	1. Require from 1½ to 2 hours. One man can treat only from 50 to 75 bushels per day.
Can be used on cut or sprouted seed without the slightest injury.	2. Can not be used on cut or sprouted seed without injury.
After planting, protects the cut seed from seed-rotting organisms in the soil. This insures a better stand of stronger plants.	3. Before cutting, give no protection to the cut surfaces. The seed frequently decays in the ground before the young plants get started.
Controls surface-borne diseases, such as Rhizoctonia, scab and blackleg.	4. Although effective against Rhizoctonia and scab, do not control black-leg.
Increases the stand and growth of plants, and thus increases yield up to 20%.	5. Frequently decrease the stand, and therefore the yield, to a serious extent.

One pound treats 15 to 20 bushels of seed potatoes.

GUARANTEE
Plant a few acres of DIPDUST treated seed in alternate rows with untreated seed. If, at digging time, you are not satisfied, return the empty DIPDUST can to us and we will refund price paid.

Treat your Corn and Vegetable Seeds too

You can now also disinfect your seed corn and vegetable seeds with DIPDUST and increase your yield by preventing many of the diseases which cause poor germination, weak, spindly plants, and poor quality crop. Simply use as a dust treatment. It is easily and quickly applied and costs but a few cents per acre. One pound of DIPDUST will treat six bushels of seed corn, or from six to eight bushels of vegetable seed.

Kenton Man Held To Face Charge of Violating Liquor Laws

Kenton, March 16—Elmer "Slim" Daniels, Kenton, is being held in the Hardin County jail here awaiting the arrival of United States marshals who are to take him to Toledo to face charges of violating the liquor laws.

Arrest of Daniels occurred late yesterday when federal, state and Hardin County officials raided his apartments on East Franklin-st and seized a large quantity of alleged liquor.

Although no definite charges have as yet been preferred, the Kenton man will in all probability face at least three counts, selling, illegal possession and creating a nuisance, when arraigned in federal court, it was said.

Raiding of Daniels' rooms created considerable excitement in the uptown district and a large crowd of onlookers gathered while the officers were conducting the raid and loading the $2,000 worth of liquor into a truck. They were forced to smash in the door to gain entrance, it was said. After long search the large store of alleged liquors was found cached in an improvised storage room above the ceiling of a hall. A trap door led to the room.

According to information, Daniels was first "spotted" when an enforcement officer purchased liquor from him.

Check of the liquor stores showed 17½ cases of beer, 20 bottles of port wine, 15 quarts and 27 pints of alleged whisky. The liquors have been placed under lock and key in the Hardin County jail awaiting its disposal.

The raid was conducted by federal and state enforcement officers and Sheriff John W. Crooks and his deputy, Waldo Haudenschield.

Attorney General Turner Flays Anti-Saloon League Paid Lobbyist in Address

Says Anti-Liquor and Utility Groups Will Back Same Candidates for Governor in Address Before Kenton Kiwanis Club

Kenton, March 16—The Anti-Saloon League and paid lobbyists were flayed by Attorney General Edward Turner here Thursday in addressing the Kenton Kiwanis Club.

"The Anti-Saloon League has captured the balance of power in both of the great political parties and back of their wet and dry barrage a great public utility lobby has grown up under which both the rate payer and investor are getting the worst of it," he said.

"I challenge the Anti-Saloon League to make public its list of contributors and permit the same to be verified by certified public accountants.

"Now the Anti-Saloon League officials may roll their eyes heavenward and protest that they are not in this unholy alliance. But unless they are greater boobs than I think they are, they must know who the men are with whom they worked in electing and organizing the last legislature. They must know that the lobbyists could not exist without the support of these same legislators who throng the lobbyists' hotel rooms during legislative sessions.

"Utility control in Ohio will not be broken until the people take political domination away from the Anti-Saloon League. Just remember that while the Anti-Saloon league put over the Marshall Bill in the last session, they allowed the twin bills which sought to repeal the iniquitous Pence Law to be killed."

Prediction was made by the speaker "that the Anti-Saloon League and the utility lobbyists will back the same candidate for Governor in the Republican primaries next August. In the Democratic ranks, the candidates so far mentioned are satisfactory to the Anti-Saloon League.

"The paid lobbyist is a menace to good government," said the attorney general, "and should be outlawed."

Referring to large campaign contributions Attorney General Turner said, "it is inevitable that those who put large sums of money will expect something in return therefor. It is no longer a matter of patriotism but it becomes a matter of investment." He also scored election frauds, declaring that legislatures should provide for a quick method of recount and the giving of bond to pay the cost of such recount.

Holding the present taxation system as archaic, obsolete and thoroughly inefficient, the speaker urged adoption of the graduated system of taxation. "Under this system," he said, "real estate taxes could be lowered, organized business would not be hampered as it is and we could eventually get to where the taxes on small homes could be cut."

After we have thoroughly reconditioned a used car, we attach a red "O.K." tag to the radiator cap.

This tag certifies that the vital units of the car have been gone over completely by expert mechanics and put in condition to give thousands of miles of additional service. It takes all the "guesswork" out of used car buying.

Look for this tag when you buy a used car—for it is your guarantee of quality and value!

Wesley M. E. Athletes Talk Recreation Ball At Banque

Archery May Be New Sport Here

John Clark Urges More Stringent Eligibility Rules in Sunday School League in Talk; Church Teams Will Organize at Future Meeting

BY KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor

Crashing bats, rooting of fans and the bawls of exasperated umpires are the visions foremost in the subconscious minds of Marion recreation ball players as a few spring like days make it easy to anticipate the opening of the season in May.

The effect of being bitten by the so-called "bee," was manifested last night at Wesley M. E. Church when an athletic banquet attended by athletes of the church was held.

Plans were made for the reorganization of Wesley ball team, an aggregation that last year finished in second place in the Marion Sunday School League.

Under the enthusiasm of John Clark's address on recreation ball, the stock of pep on the Wesley took a big rise in the market. A meeting will be held in the near future when final plans will be considered and the election of a cautain and managers held.

A line of sport, new in the annals of Marion athletics, will be introduced at the church in the near future by the pastor, Rev. G. A. Whitlock. Archery will be the new sport and is one that is gaining many followers throughout the United States each year.

Rev. Whitlock is an experienced archer and told of many of the rounds conducted in America and England. Archery, he said, is a man's sport giving as much exercise as can be obtained in golf. It appeals to young and old alike and men and women participate in the game.

Classes will be started at Wesley Church and practically all equipment with the exception of arrows will be hand made. The bow, he said, should be the height of the person using it with arrows 28 inches long. The draw or force necessary to pull a bow runs from 15 up to 75 pounds. The target is 48 inches in diameter and sets on a tripod.

Clark Talks

John Clark, the "grand old man of Marion recreation ball," urged the adoption of more stringent rules concerning the eligibility of players. He made a plea for all bonafide players with no ringers being used on teams.

Be a finisher and not a quitter, was the appeal he made to all athletes. A man's success in athletics, he said, will go far towards his success in business. If you are a quitter on the diamond you are certain to be one in business when a tight job confronts you.

The banquet was prepared by the ladies of the church while D. G. Trowbridge acted as toastmaster.

Past Grand Masters of Mt. Gilead Lodge Are Honor Guests

Mt. Gilead, March 16—Past Grand Masters of the Masonic Lodge were banqueted last night in the Masonic Hall. The Eastern Star Lodge served the banquet. There were about 18 Past Masters present.

The invocation was given by Dr. W. B. Robinson and the welcome address by A. M. Payne, grand master. Dr. C. Jensen responded. H. E. Griffith, as toastmaster, then introduced E. J. Wieland who spoke of "A Faithful Brother" who was James Pugh, the oldest past master active in the lodge.

The speaker of the evening was then introduced as Frank H. Marquis, Past Grand Master of Ohio Masons, of Mansfield.

GALION DEBATERS WIN FROM ASHLAND

Affirmative Team Takes 3 to 0 Count From Visitors; Second Galion Victory

Galion, March 16—Galion High debaters received the unanimous vote of judges in the debate held in the school auditorium last night with a team from Ashland High School. The local squad upheld the affirmative of the argument with Ashland representatives in defense of the negative side of the question. The subject for debate was the same as has been used in the debates throughout the season: "Resolved, That a system of classification of property for taxation be adopted in Ohio in place of the present uniform rule."

E. Paul Monroe of this city acted as chairman and introduced the speakers who were Evelyn Rensch, Theodore Schaefer and Velma Myers for Galion with Robert Heiby as alternate, and Ruth Baylor, Maxine Freytag, Junior Jacobs, with Mary Hammond as alternate, for Ashland. It was the first time this season that the Galion affirmative team has taken part in a contest at home and great interest was centered in the affair.

Last night's victory was the second 3-0 decision for local teams this year, the negative aggregation having won by a similar vote last week at Mansfield. Debates with Marion, Delaware, Akron and Wooster are still on the schedule.

Franklin Raymond and Mr. Eichenberg of Wittenberg College and I. McQuaid of Ohio State University were the judges in the debate and as program features Kathryn Peebles and Kenneth Rensch presented organ numbers.

ISALYS DEFEATED

Marion Team Eliminated From Basketball Meet by Hebron

Marion's last hopes for winning the State Journal basketball tournament flickered and passed the way of many other such aspirations last night when the Isaly Dairies were defeated by Hebron, 31 to 27.

Hebron was given a hard battle by the local cagers but the Dairies lacked the necessary punch to put over a victory. Tschannen gathered 14 of the Dairy scores. The line-ups:

FOOTBALL PRACTICE TO START AT STATE

Members of Squad Will Report to Coaches on March 27

Columbus, March 15—Spring football practice will get under way March 27 at Ohio State University with the opening of the spring quarter. Squad members have been requested to report that afternoon for the start of the course of training which will last a month.

The program of spring training will be about the same as in other years. The annual Spring Tournament will occupy the last week of the practice.

This tournament which was won last season by George Fouch, of Mt. Vernon, consists of these events: 100-yd dash with ball for backfield men, 60-yd. dash for linemen, passing, punting, place-kicking and drop-kicking.

While the exact personnel of the squad remains to be seen, there are certain to be a large number of freshmen out as well as many sophomores and juniors from the 1927 team.

STATE TOURNAMENT OPENS AT COLISEUM IN COLUMBUS TODAY

Nine Class A and 10 B Teams To Take Part in Annual Classic

Columbus, March 16—Nine class A and 10 class B teams, representing all sections of the state are here today as the annual struggle for Ohio's high school basketball championships gets under way.

New Concord and Oberlin, both class B teams were to start off the tournament at 9 a. m. Following them Kunkle and Tippecanoe City, two other class B aggregations will meet at 10 a. m.

After the playing of these two games the first two Class A squads, Hamilton and Hillsboro will open up the race for the Class A basketball championship of Ohio.

And again at 12:30 p. m. Berea and Manchester are scheduled to resume the class B elimination. Following this game Marysville and Strasburg will play at 1:30 o'clock, and at 2:30 p. m. Castalia and Marshall will meet.

Stivers May Be Good

Fremont and Dayton Stivers are scheduled to play at 3:30 p. m. So much has been said of these two teams that this promises to be the "one game" of the day.

At 6:30 p. m. in the class B tournament, the winner of the New Concord-Oberlin game will meet the victors of the Kunkle-Tippecanoe City tilt.

The rest of the evening will be given over to Class A teams. Columbus Central will play Toledo Libbey at 7:30 p. m., Canton McKinley will meet East Liverpool at 7:30, and at 9:30 p. m. Akron South will meet the winner of the Hamilton Hillsboro game that was played this morning.

Quarters will be eight minutes with a one minute rest between quarters and ten minute rest between halfs.

Tourney Officials

The officials will be Fred Trautman, Bucyrus; A. B. Long, Newark and R. W. Finsterwald of Athens. L. N. Drake of Columbus is the official scorer while R. A. Howard, Wauseon, is the time keeper.

No practice in the Coliseum was allowed before the tournaments although each team is given a practice period before each game they play.

The Ohio High School Athletic Association has provided lodging and meals for every player in the tournament so that the tournament will not cost a player one cent of actual expense.

Rooms at the Fort Hayes, Southern, Chittenden hotels here have been reserved for the players. Each player will be allowed fifty cents for each meal. Even the transportation was provided for by the Association.

The squad that wins the state tournament has an optional choice of going to Chicago to compete in the National Tournament to be held there April 3-7. It is understood here that the championship team of nearly every state in the Union will be represented in the national meet.

Christians Rally To Take Contest

Go on Last Quarter Scoring Spree To Defeat Trinity and Win Title; Play Epworth at "Y" Tonight for County Honors

General Christian won the last half title of the Marion County Scholastic school league and the right to meet Epworth tonight for the county championship by defeating Trinity Baptist, 29 to 24, at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

Trailing throughout the first three quarters of the games, the Christians rallied in the final period to win over Trinity. The winners were pretty well tired out from previous games and were unable to get going in the early parts of the game.

Art Yazel dropped them in from here and there on the floor to carry the Central team to victory. He scored a total of 13 points. Rinnett accounted for 10.

The scoring of W. Merchant for Trinity was of no use. He accounted for 11 counters.

Tonight the winners and Epworth clash for season honors. Epworth will have the advantage in this fray of being fresh, not having played since last week. However, Epworth has not been going so good since winning the first half championship.

The game will start at 8 o'clock.

Spitball Artists Still Going Strong In Big Leagues

By [illegible] G. MENKE

T [illegible]

same. About one youngster in a hundred that get a chance makes good with an immediate bang. None of the remaining 99 are carried along on the various teams for "further seasoning" in an occasional big league combat.

The other 90 go back whence they came.

The reason there's no third big league—the real one—is that there's not enough GOOD baseball material in the land to supply the two big leagues that now exist.

In fact, there's hardly enough to give more than eight of the 16 clubs a big league look. If you are skeptical, then look at what the Braves, Red Sox, Phillies, Browns, Dodgers and some of those other outfits have shown through the past few years: look at 'em and then if you can't laugh when someone calls 'em big leagues —well, you haven't a sense of humor.

SPITTER BOOMERANG

IN 1920 the bosses of baldom put the dingus upon the "spitter."

They took the attitude that its use destroyed a pitcher's arm effectively and hurriedly.

And now—eight years later—it is obvious that a spitball pitcher lasts longer than does his normal pitching rival.

Action against the spitball was taken in Dec., 1920. At the time it was decided to permit 10 pitchers to go on using the "spitter." It was decided that the most brave was there a few days and that terrific strain on arms of means that they would be through then and there.

At the time it was [illegible] decided—

"The spitter will disappear from baseball within three or four years. None of the youngsters coming up from now on will be privileged to use it, and the 10 men who are exempted will screw their arms out in a few years.

Seven of the 10 still remain as major league stars.

And the amazing thing about it is that all of these men have come along for years and years and are more years beyond the presumed lifetime of a big league pitcher. They have outlasted all other types of baseballs players.

If the "spitballers" who remained were youngsters, then it might be said that they still carry on because of youth. But all of them were near or beyond 30 in 1920. Right then they had reached the presumed end of major league usefulness.

And the continued use of the "spitter," it was predicted, would call them off in a hurry.

AN $83 SHORTSTOP

A COUPLE of seasons ago a baseball owner paid $85 for a shortstop who was sold recently for $75,000 and $10,000 [illegible] slightly used baseballs to [illegible].

It's the story of [illegible] Cissell.

Cissell was a [illegible] boys school days. After [illegible] local ball boys a [illegible] of the Ohio Circuit [illegible] at Lima he landed [illegible] Des Moines, near the [illegible] Des Moines, Iowa, [illegible] he performed [illegible] cavalary.

The white sox [illegible] ball club saw him [illegible] right away figured he was a [illegible] for the wrong [illegible] S. [illegible] decided to unload [illegible] and [illegible] tape and, what [illegible]

[illegible] Cissell—and Uncle Sam [illegible] $85 which was the price paid for [illegible] Min from service.

Cissell started as utility infielder for Des Moines. Next he was regular shortstop. And not so long afterward Portland, in the Pacific Coast League paid Des Moines $12,000 for Cissell.

The brilliant showing of Cissell with Portland in 1927 brought offers for him from almost every big league club in both circuits. The offer of the White Sox topped them all. It was $75,000 and players like Bodie, who cost $5,000, Pitcher Bert Cole, who cost $35,000 and two more players valued at $14,000 each. So the Sox got him.

That $125,000 is plenty money. But folks do insist that Cissell is merely ball player. The jury will get a chance to deliberate the case beginning in April when Cissell steps into the worn boots of the departed Roger Peckinpaugh.

Cincinnati Reds Are Ageing Fast

Few Changes Have Been Made in Personnel of Team; Will Have About the Same Strength on Field as Last Year

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

[illegible] March 16.—You probably [illegible] the one about the [illegible] beaten to a standstill [illegible] made it up all by [illegible] Cincinnati Reds [illegible] pretty stiff in the [illegible] in an ageing per[illegible] several years but man[illegible] ever is rampant in [illegible] John Hendricks in[illegible] before hauling off [illegible] camp with his Reds. [illegible] looked any better it [illegible] not scared of itself to [illegible]

[illegible] peculiar difference that [illegible] what it was, that you [illegible] pitchers growing older [illegible] ness and that his in[illegible] at best. John Charles [illegible] everything was all [illegible] of it.

Others Not So Good

[illegible] your pocket money [illegible] won't be as good as [illegible] class of the trade for [illegible] John. "As for the [illegible] to be as good, after [illegible] Hornsby and Grimes. [illegible] Aldridge, even if he [illegible] as many games as [illegible] Cubs hurt their in[illegible] Adams and from all I [illegible] Cuyler is are shot."

[illegible] desire, why will the [illegible] improvement. Hendricks [illegible] can. For instance, that [illegible] Critz, star second [illegible] so long that he never [illegible] that Carl Mays was [illegible] owing to an opera[illegible] Rixey injured his [illegible] for 30 days, the old [illegible] arsenal, and that Horace [illegible] was unavailable in 29 [illegible] latter, according to [illegible] might be regarded as [illegible] at that, but Mr. Hen[illegible] see things his own [illegible]

Donohue Will Help

[illegible] course, will be in there [illegible] to help round out a [illegible] ching staff, which in[illegible] Rixey, Adolfo Luque, [illegible] Frank "Jakie" May, Jeff [illegible] Fred Lucas, the flower of [illegible] last year's performances. [illegible] and Luque are getting no [illegible] cuddly and Donohue may [illegible] not prove to be the man he was. Luque, looks just as good as ever he did.

Ray Kolp, North Canton, Ohio, member of the 1927 staff, is again with us but Hendricks is saving all of his eloquence for James C. Edwards, the Pontotoc, Miss. left-hander, drafted from Seattle. The "Jim Joe" Edwards of Cleveland Indian days apparently is with us this time indefinitely.

Lawrence Arnzen, Newport, Ky., semi-pro.; Ken Ash, from Petersburg, Va., Jim Beckman, with the Reds last year; Pete Jablonowski, back again from Hartford, Conn.; Bill Miller, Chicago semi-pro; Alius Edward Sweeney, of Orlando and Grenada, Miss.; Dick Wyckoff, of Springfield, Mass., and Osborne, Kan., and Harold Williams are here today and probably gone tomorrow.

Same Catchers

He has the same three catchers, Eugene Hargrave, of St. Paul; Val Picinich, of Leonia, N. J. and Clyde Sukeforth, of Medford, Mass., so that's all right or I guess it is. George Kelly, the San Francisco highboy, will play first base; Critz, one of the best in baseball, will be at second; Ford at shortstop and Charley Dressen, of Decatur, Ill., at third.

A good infield on the right side; just fair on the left, and the infield substitutes are much the same. Wally Pipp again is available as utility first baseman but he hasn't long to go. Clarke Pittenger of Toledo, again is ready for more. Emmett McCann, up again, this time from Columbus, may or may not stick.

Roush was traded last year. Rube Bressler followed him only a few days ago and so the old Red outfit is no more. Their departure more or less leaves Curt Walker, of Beeville, Texas, Bill Zitzmann, of Nutley, N. J., and Ethan Nathan Allen, of Cincinnati, in charge. Martin Callaghan of Seattle and Norwood, Mass., and Everett Purdue, of Seattle and Beatrice, Neb., are in there swinging and to no slight effect.

The Reds as I see them, are just a fair club; not bad but not too good either.

MAYBE SOMETHING NEW?

The way this yearling pitcher was bending 'em over the plate against the Pelicans brought him the praises of General Manager Billy Evans and Manager Roger Peckinpaugh.

If Mel Harder succeeds in showing more of the same stuff in his training review at the Indian camp he may be one of the ten pitchers considered as the varsity staff.

MORE THAN 500 PAY TAXES IN LAST WEEK

Notices Mailed Out by County Treasurer Before Penalty Is Attached

More than 500 individuals and business firms in Marion County paid their personal property taxes for the year during the last week in response to notices sent out from county treasurer's office, Treasurer J. E. Messenger's office today.

Notices were mailed out to all who failed to pay their personal taxes during the collection of the first half of the year, which runs to the close Feb. 1. This procedure is followed each year by the treasurer's office to give all citizens a chance to settle before a 10 per cent penalty provided by law is added to their taxes.

Failure of many to pay their personal assessments during the month of February, the last month of collection is due to lack of familiarity with the tax laws. The [illegible]

because he was always tired

IN EVERY walk of life you'll meet the "Drowsy Bills" . . . men and women who are losing out because they are forever tired. Young people they often are, in age—but old in energy. They try hard enough—but they are serving constipation too. The dread disease that can rob the strongest body of strength. That kills initiative. Wrecks health. That often handicaps with lasting disease.

And isn't it a pity when a simple, healthful cereal could bring relief all the while? Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation promptly and safely. More — to prevent it from the start.

Nothing less than "ALL-BRAN" is 100% effective

Bulk or roughage relieves constipation naturally. ALL-BRAN furnishes healthful bulk in generous quantity because it is 100% bran. This bulk absorbs moisture and distributes it through the digestive system. Gently distending the intestines — exercising them — sweeping out wastes and poisons. In a part-bran product the quantity of bulk is seldom sufficient to completely perform this work. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because it is 100% bran and accomplishes 100% results.

Different from unnatural pills

ALL-BRAN works as nature works. How much better than habit-forming drugs and laxatives whose dose must be constantly increased to remain effective—and which sometimes injure the system.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is an inviting, healthful cereal to eat with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits or honey added. Sprinkle it into soups too. Use it in cooking—recipes on package. Mix it with other cereals. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

For health's sake, be sure you get genuine Kellogg's — the original ALL-BRAN. Don't take chances with part-bran substitutes. At best, they can be but partially effective. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, cafeterias, On diners. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

FIRST TAX SALE OF YEAR BEING PLANNED

Foreclosure Will Be Started Within Next Few Weeks

The first tax sale of foreclosure proceedings of Common Pleas are ... Treasurer James ... in foreclosure ... within the next few ... started today.

The highest bidder gets a clear title to the premises, even though the amount paid may not be enough to cover the entire tax claim. Taxes are a first lien and mortgage holders or other creditors get nothing if the property does not sell for more than the tax claim.

Suits are brought by the treasurer through the prosecuting attorney.

Every Ape produces men who are afraid of it. Now, pick out the ones you think are those men.

... properties which are most likely to attract bidders.

... have been listed for early sale. One is a tract consisting of four lots in the village of Marion, which has delinquencies amounting to $11,258.82. Another is a residence property on Pleasant with delinquencies totaling $8,820.27, the third is a quarter of an acre in the suburbs of Marion, charged with $2,205 back taxes, and the fourth is a property on Parker, which has a tax accumulation of $1,717.56.

Inquiries Made

Inquiries have been made regarding all of these properties and they are practically certain to sell, the treasurer said.

Other properties will probably be put up for sale at different times during the course of the year.

The sale procedure is the same as that followed in mortgage foreclosure actions, the properties being appraised and sold by the sheriff under order of the

HOUSE GROUP TAKES UP MUSCLE SHOALS

Norris Resolution for Government Operation of Project Before Committee

Washington, March 16—The Norris resolution for government operation of the $100,000,000 Muscle Shoals project was taken up by the House Military Affairs Committee today with indications that a definite congressional policy would soon be evolved.

The Norris plan, adopted by the Senate, made the third proposal for development of the great power and nitrate project before the House body.

The Madden bill to lease the plant to the American Cyanamid Co. for making of fertilizer and the Morin bill to lease the power plants and use the proceeds for Department of Agriculture experiments in fertilizer manufacture and use are also pending.

Representative Morin, Republican, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the committee, said that a committee decision probably would be rendered by Monday.

The government probably will be required to spend $100,000,000 more on the project under any scheme of development, Morin said. New estimates for building Dam No. 3 and Cove Creek Dam place the cost at $71,000,000, and Ryan's rights would mean $20,000,000 more, he said.

Railroads, Motors Put in Active Day

Next Financial Statement to Directors Will Be Most Satisfactory Ever Presented

New York, March 16—The general advance of the motor and industrial stocks continued in the early part of the market today. After a few days comparative quiet, General Motors jumped into the position of leadership of the bull movement in the industrials, racing upward to above 169 for a new 6-point gain before the noon hour, in one of the most active periods of the year. Chrysler Motor, Hudson and Packard established new high records for the year.

That powerful interests have resumed buying of General Motors stocks with the almost unanimous view of the financial district as large blocks of the stock came over the tape on a rising price scale. Adding about 6 points to yesterday's 4 point advance, the stock showed a new gain of 12 points since the turn of the week, and rumors of a possible special cash dividend were circulated in Wall Street. The directors meet in the early part of May, and will have for their guidance the best financial statement ever submitted by the big corporation.

Heads of the eastern railroad systems in conference here today on the consolidation situation declined to make any comment on their deliberations, but it was generally believed that an amicable adjustment of the trunk-line set up would be arrived at. Under the leadership of New York Central, the dividend rails pushed forward vigorously.

It is a wise provision of nature that a boy who has got the mitten, does not feel so bad 48 hours afterward as he did 24 hours afterward.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S MARKET

Chicago, March 16—Wheat opened lower yesterday, due to scattered selling on the reports of favorable weather conditions in the West and Southwest. Buying against the privileges and because of the strength in corn checked the early break. With only a moderate trade the market drifted in a narrow range the remainder of the session and there were no important rallies.

Closing prices were ¼@⅜c off, with the new crop months the weakest. March closed at $1.37⅝, May $1.37⅛, July $1.34⅜ and September $1.33⅝.

Corn prices ruled sharply higher. With reports of export sales from Chicago, advancing export bids and a firm cash situation, interest in the futures broadened. May reached 99½c, or ½c from the recent top. Selling against the privileges shaded best prices, but net advances of ⅝@⅞c were registered. March finished at 96⅛@⅛c, May 99½c, July $1.01¼ and September $1.02⅜.

Further buying by seaboard interests, reports of export sales to Holland and the firmness of corn lent strengthen to the oats market, which finished steady to ⅛c higher. Rye prices were higher most of the session and closed with gains of ⅜@1c.

Precipitation in the form of rain and snow covered the western and southwestern portions of the Winter wheat belt, and the forecast is for more moisture in those section. This brought selling pressure on the new crop months at the outset and they ruled the weakest of the futures. Some early selling of the old deliveries was due to the weakness of Liverpool.

LETTER EXPLAINS SEED MARKET RULES

Marion County Sealer of Weights and Measures Receives Instructions

Rules relating to the marketing of farm and lawn seeds under provisions of the Ohio agricultural seed law are explained in a letter received today by Clifford P. Swisher, Marion County sealer of weights and measures, from the State Department of Agriculture.

The letter, sent in response to a request from Swisher for a ruling on certain sections of the law, states that farmers are exempt from license requirements when seed is grown, sold and delivered on their own premises. A large number of Marion County farmers, the sealer states, have requested information regarding the law.

Advertising seed for sale is not permitted unless a license has been obtained. When advertised in any way, either through newspapers, circulars, letters or bulletins, a license fee of $5 must be paid and the seed properly inspected and labeled.

The purpose of the law is to prevent distribution of low grade seeds. A fine of not more than $100 is provided as a penalty for violations.

Licenses for all persons except those exempted as stated in the ruling received today, must be obtained from the state department of agriculture. The ruling came from Richard Faron, chief of the division of plant industry in the state department.

MOTORS REPLACING RAILROAD HANDCARS

Only Few of Old-Fashioned Vehicles To Be Found in Service Here

Along with horses and other relics of bygone days, the handcar on Marion railroads is giving way to the gasoline motor, a check here revealed.

On four railroads operating through Marion it is doubtful whether or not a dozen of the hand propelled cars could be brought together at one time.

The elimination of the handcar was noted years ago when the value of motorized transportation in cutting down time to and from the source of work was realized.

Since the first motor car was placed into service, the decline of the handcar has been steady until now they are used only for emergency work or on short distances. Some roads have done away with the car completely.

Practically every section hand in Marion can remember cold mornings when the gang made their way to work on one of these antiquated vehicles. Battling snow, wind and hills the men were little in for work the balance of the day.

Now no effort at all is required in riding the motor cars. The cars speed over the rails at a fast clip making a big saving in time and money.

Believed Suicide

With a bullet wound in his head, the lifeless body of Guy A. Coleman, 33, Crestline, was found in the loft of a barn at his home there by his six-year-old daughter.

Coleman, who for the past four months has been without work, was employed as fireman on the Pennsylvania Railroad. His inability to obtain employment and ill health was given as the reason for the act.

Besides the widow and three children he is survived by his father, John Coleman of Shelby; six brothers, Charles, Jack and Fred, living in Shelby.
